Columbia Pact Signed Too Soon, Says Pearson

IN TROUBLE SPOT

Declaring that the United States is "willing to do anything for peace" vice-president Lyndon Johnson arrived in Communist-threatened South Viet Nam today. He added, the Communists must understand that the U.S. "is not going to be bullied and is not bullying anybody."

WIRE BRIEFS

New Air Speed Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An air force D58 bomber has held a sustained speed of 1,302 miles an hour for 30 minutes and 45 seconds over a 669.4-mile distance to claim a new closed-course record, it was announced today.

Airliner Sabotaged?

ALGIER (UPI)—A French airliner, which crashed with the loss of 79 in the Sahara Desert Wednesday fell to earth from a comparatively low height, a report from the scene of the crash said today. French experts were checking possibility of sabotage in the tragedy.

Deny Tshombe Report

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Congolese security chief Victor Ndeka today formally denied reports that Premier Moise Tshombe of breakaway Katanga Province, who is interned by the central government, has been transferred from Coquilhatville to Leopoldville.

Delinquency Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today asked Congress to authorize a five-year program of federal action to combat juvenile delinquency.

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Pearson declared and Justice Minister Fulton denied in the Commons today that Canada was too hasty in signing the Columbia River development treaty with the United States.

H. W. Herdridge (CCF—Kootenay West) appealed during study of resources department estimates for reconsideration of a proposal to build a high dam, flooding a large part of the Arrow Lakes countryside. A lower dam would give as much power and destroy less land, he said.

Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party would not commit itself on the treaty until it has been submitted to the external affairs committee of the House for detailed study and witnesses have been heard.

But he said it now is clear that Canada should not have signed the treaty until the federal government had arrived at a firm agreement with British Columbia on the province's part in financing and construction. The treaty was signed in haste in the dying hours of the Eisenhower administration.

He conceded that the federal government had every reason to believe B.C. had accepted the terms of the treaty, "but we now know that assumption was based on a false premise."

Mr. Fulton, who did not conclude his remarks before the Commons adjourned for lunch, said 17 years of negotiations had gone into the treaty. Therefore, it could not be described as having been signed in haste.

The treaty would be submitted to committee where there would be "the fullest vindication of its terms and the full exposition of its advantages."

'Nothing Imprudent or Improper'

Mr. Fulton said there was "nothing imprudent or in the least way improper or unwarranted" in signing an international treaty that did not obligate the country until it was ratified.

Mr. Pearson noted that the treaty had been ratified by the U.S. Senate on an overwhelming vote. The fact the U.S. was anxious to agree to the treaty should not be a reason for arousing suspicions of it in Canada, he added.

It was the first time that Mr. Pearson had dealt at length in the Commons with the Columbia treaty.

Mr. Herdridge, who opposed it from the start, reiterated today that the treaty was signed without a knowledge of all the facts and without federal-B.C. agreement.

Weatherman Puts Blame On Weather

Heavy snows on the Olympic Mountains is not the cause of current cool weather here, weatherman William Mackie assured today.

"It is the result of this cold, wet, miserable, unseemly, untimely, unprintable weather," he said. "We've been getting rain, and the high mountains have been getting snow."

He said the present weather system over Victoria is showing signs of weakening, and may give sunshine Friday with a few clouds, light winds, and temperatures up to 60 degrees.

"The outlook for the weekend is poor, though," he said. "Right now it looks like there will be more showers."

Landslide Kills 50 In Malaya

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—Fifty persons were believed killed today in a big landslide in the Cameron Highlands, a hillside resort 130 miles from here.

Twelve bodies have been recovered.

The rubble buried six houses in a row, one report said. Another report by an eyewitness said two taxis filled with holiday-makers were caught in the path of the slide.

Hundreds of men working on a nearby hydro-electric dam site rushed to the scene to join in rescue operations.

Canada Set To Mediate Cuba Dispute

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today Canada is prepared to help mediate the dispute between the United States and Cuba.

He indicated in an interview that a cooling-off period would be necessary before such mediation could take place.

Canada attempted a similar move last summer with Mexico and Brazil, but it got nowhere.

Green indicated Mexico and Brazil would participate with Canada in any renewed attempt at mediation.

The external affairs minister discussed the Cuban affair with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Oslo Tuesday.

LAOTIAN PRINCE SHOT, PATHET LAO BLAMED

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—A top aide of deputy Premier Phoumi Novasane was assassinated early today as he drove in a car through the downtown area of Vientiane. Unconfirmed reports said the killing was staged by the Communist Pathet Lao.

The dead man was Maj. Chao Ekarat, a Laotian prince and nephew of neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Geneva Talks Ready on Laos

(Times News Services)
GENEVA—The Big Three Western powers were reported ready to take their seats in a big East-West conference about the future of Laos opening here Friday.

The decision apparently was based on word received in London today that organized fighting has ceased in the jungle kingdom.

This word was not official, but well-informed British sources reported the main fighting has died out. They noted that sporadic clashes continue and one said "these things will still have to be regularized."

There was no official confirmation from the United States, Britain and France that they had dropped earlier reservations to participating in the conference if a cease-fire was not certified.

But sources close to the Western delegations said that, in view of the London news from Laos, they probably would agree tonight to sit down at the conference table at the UN Palace of Nations Friday with their Eastern opposites.

GREEN ARRIVES

Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green arrived from Oslo today and said he hopes Laos can be cut off from outside pressure.

Green told reporters at the airport: "We hope the Laos conference will produce agreed arrangements which will enable an independent, unified and neutral Laos to live in peace with its neighbor and to resolve its internal disputes within the framework of political institutions, acceptable to all sections of the population."

He added: "We also hope that provision will be made at this conference to insulate Laos from outside pressures."

Truce Team Join Talks

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The three-nation truce supervisory commission moved into the negotiations between right-wing and leftist forces today in an attempt to bring about a formal cease-fire before the opening in Geneva Friday of an international conference on Laos.

The chiefs of the three delegations on the commission—Samar Sen of India, Leon Mayrand of Canada and Albert Morski of Poland—flew with the right-wing delegation today when it left here for fresh cease-fire talks with the communist-backed leftists.

The right-wing negotiators left shortly after Sen had reported "successful" preliminary talks with the leftist leaders Wednesday night in Xieng Khouang.

Hitler Aide Jailed As Red

INGOLDSFADT, West Germany (Reuters)—One of 28 alleged Communist agents arrested in West Germany earlier this week was identified today as Richard Scherger, one of Hitler's early supporters. Police said Scherger, who runs a nearby farm, was in custody here.

Ross Report Made Public

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Reorganization of B.C.'s mental health services, with a huge building program based on regional treatment, is proposed in the report of the American Psychiatric Association, made public today by the provincial government.

The report, 137 pages, was ordered by the B.C. government in November, 1958.

Health Minister Eric Martin commented: "This government feels it is a good report and will serve as an invaluable guide to the future development of mental health services in B.C."

The report, submitted by Dr. Mathew Ross, head of the APA, places heavy emphasis on increasing facilities and staff.

It urges a strong provincial administrative organization, but stresses that actual treatment of mental illness should be more on a community level.

Key to its 50 recommendations is 'decentralization of treatment and rehabilitation rather than the virtual imprisonment of the mentally ill in isolated institutions.'

A combination of provincial, federal, medical and private insurance assistance is suggested, although no specific method is proposed.

The report contains major recommendations for tougher treatment of criminals, a special drug addict treatment centre and a complete overhaul of what it calls "archaic" provincial laws regarding commitment of patients to mental hospitals.

Heading the big building program are three Vancouver Island projects—a 450-bed centre for the mentally retarded, an adult mental health clinic and a new 500-bed Victoria mental hospital, which has already been promised this year by Mr. Martin.

Better Pay, More Staff Vital

Better pay and more staff are vital to the entire program, says the Ross report. It is particularly critical of the lack of psychiatrists and psychologists outside the big metropolitan areas.

In putting mental health services more into the community level, the report suggests the province be divided into mental health districts to conform with the present 17 public health districts.

Each district should contain a mental health planning and advisory board composed of lay and professional officials and headed by an experienced psychiatrist.

Administration of the provincial mental health branch would be widened to include two subdivisions—hospital services and community services.

Each community should be encouraged to set up a welfare council to work closely with provincial officials.

Communities, says the report, should receive provincial aid on a matching fund basis to expand their facilities.

In dealing with criminals, the report suggests a special government division of legal medicine including psychiatric staff at all jails. It also proposes a law requiring all persons indicted of a capital offence or previously indicted of a felony to be examined by two psychiatrists.

A new drug addiction treatment centre should be built at Essondale with a law passed allowing judges to commit offenders to the unit. It would be up to medical staff there to decide how long the addict remained in custody.

While it does not recommend a specific alcoholism treatment centre, the report urges "some other type of facility" for alcoholics in jails and urges treatment for alcoholics at community centres.

ELECTION REPORTS

The Esquimalt-Saanich by-election campaign is building up to a new intensity this week as more national political figures enter the contest.

In today's Times are the following reports:

Girl Fired For Backing Castro

CALGARY (CP)—Valerie Smith, 26-year-old draftsman, says she was dismissed from her job after making statements in support of the Cuban government of Premier Castro.

She said Wednesday night she was summarily dismissed earlier in the day by Midwest Surveys Limited where she had worked for 3½ years.

Miss Smith, who recently spent a two-week holiday in Cuba, praised the Castro government during a speech to the Knights of the Round Table.

She said she is not sure whether the comments or the publicity they received were responsible for the dismissal.

J. J. Simpson, manager of the company, made no comment.

'End Geneva Stalling'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican congressional leadership today called on President Kennedy today to end the "monumental stall" at Geneva by fixing a deadline for Russian agreement to a ban on nuclear weapons testing.

CPR Seamen Protest Flagship Conditions

LONDON (CP)—The Empress of Canada, new Canadian Pacific flagship, may sail into troubled waters Friday when she steams into Liverpool to complete her maiden voyage.

The unofficial National Seamen's Reform Movement said Wednesday it had received a number of complaints from seamen on board that accommodation for crew members is "inadequate and overcrowded."

Pat Neary, the movement's chief, said the complaints had been received by airmail from Montreal.

"If the ship is not to our satisfaction before she is due to sail next Tuesday we will call the men off for 24 hours and delay her sailing."

Capt. R. V. Burns, Canadian Pacific general manager, said he had received no complaints. The accommodation, he added, was as good as that in any other ship in the fleet.

SPY TRIALS POST MORTEM

LONDON (Reuters)—The government has decided on a fresh review of security procedure in Britain, Prime Minister Macmillan announced today.

He made the announcement in the House of Commons in the wake of a 42-year prison term given last week to Soviet spy George Blake.

The review, he said, would be made of security procedures and practices currently in force throughout the public service.

It would be undertaken by a body of independent persons of high standing.

Blake, a British foreign office employee, was alleged to have wrecked much of Britain's cold war effort in the 1950s by giving information to the Russians.

The new review will be in addition to that of a committee already appointed to investigate any possible security failures. This investigation was prompted by the conviction of five spies earlier this year for passing British naval secrets to Russia.

The findings of the earlier committee, under the chair-

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

'Acute Cases Only' Order At Hospital

(Compiled from CP)

PRINCE GEORGE — Hospital officials warned Wednesday all but acute cases will be refused admittance to Prince George Hospital and patients now will be examined to determine whether further hospital treatment is essential.

The warnings were given following the provincial government's refusal Tuesday to complete unfinished parts of the new 125-bed hospital which would add 38 beds.

An official of the hospital said a delegation to Health Minister Martin in Victoria was told their diagnosis of the situation was not convincing and that B.C. Hospital Insurance Service will appoint an independent survey team to study the situation.

Hospital officials have been putting extra beds in corridors because rooms and wards are full. Fire department, however, has ordered this stopped by June 13, under the threat of closure or a levy of $30 a day in fines.

WOMAN KILLED

NEW WESTMINSTER — A woman was killed Wednesday night when a taxi ran off the Trans-Canada Highway in nearby Surrey.

The driver was injured. Police identified the woman as Gladys Eleanor Storings, 38, of Yale. The driver was named as Guy Vernon Myrick, 46, of Vancouver.

NO CANDIDATE

VANCOUVER — Labor is unlikely to sponsor a candidate in the June 21 park commissioner byelection because of recent amendments to the Labor Relations Act which ban use of union dues for political purposes.

A Vancouver Labor Council official said Wednesday Bill 42 would probably rule out entry of a candidate in the contest.

FATAL ACCIDENT

NELSON — One man was killed and another injured when a car plunged over the Southern Trans-Provincial Highway near here Wednesday. RCMP identified the man killed as Eugene Gonet, 36, of Silverton. John Matheson, 73, also of Silverton was injured.

MACPOWELL RAPPEL

VANCOUVER — MacMillan, Biedel and Powell River Ltd.'s plans to participate in a multi-million dollar Australia pulp investment was called a bad step by the International Woodworkers of America Wednesday.

In a statement, the union said the proposal announced Tuesday, contemplates an untimely diversion of capital from British Columbia industrial development and will lead to a limitation of the export of B.C. products.

"It will slam the door on prosperity for secondary industries based on our major basic industries."

The union said the announcement was not unexpected. Since its merger, the company has pursued policies which have consistently given priority to immediate profit taking without due regard to the general prosperity of the province from which it has extracted its great wealth.

Suicide 'Only Way' For Jews

JERUSALEM (UPI)

Twelve hundred Berlin Jews committed suicide in three months when the Nazis began their deportations, a woman witness testified today in the Adolf Eichmann trial.

Mrs. Hildegard Herschel, widow of one of the leaders in the Jewish community in Berlin, said the Jews had no illusions from the start as to what the Nazis were going to do to them. The transports loaded with Jews began rolling out of Berlin.

"Was there any way to avoid the transports?" asked Israeli Solicitor-General Yaakov Baror.

"Only suicide," she replied. "The suicides began immediately. Between October, 1941, and January 1942, 1,200 Jews committed suicide. People used to take veronal or cyanide, but mostly veronal because cyanide was difficult to obtain."

Only half the volume of stocks quoted on the German stock market are available for trading, the remainder being held in portfolios of companies or individuals.

Grits Would Have Checked Job Decline Says Hellyer

Excess unemployment in Canada today is due to "mismanagement" by the Diefenbaker government, Liberal MP Paul Hellyer told a press conference Wednesday afternoon.

"We don't blame the Conservatives for all unemployment," he said, "but we do insist that if the Liberal government had remained in power there would not be anything like the unemployment we have now."

Mr. Hellyer said unemployment is becoming a "most serious domestic problem" in Canada and is "undermining the very roots of our system."

He said the Liberal party had a definite plan to meet unemployment by initiating major public projects across the country.

"ANYTIME NOW"

Asked about the next federal election, Mr. Hellyer replied: "It could come any time between now and 1963. But we are having a little general election in four byelections across the country."

"The Saanich-Esquamalt by-election will show that the people out here are tired of Conservative promises."

Mr. Hellyer referred to the Diefenbaker government as a "crash crisis government" that only acts under public pressure.

"That is because it is largely a one-man government and no man can make all the decisions that are essential to good government."

"The Diefenbaker government makes no major decisions until it is forced to by public opinion."

'Make Up Your Mind'

Fulton Urges B.C.

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Fulton said Wednesday he is unable to assure a start this year on Canadian projects in the Columbia River power development plan.

The starting date is up to that the United States was anxious to start the project. Canada is anxious, too, Mr. Fulton said. The federal government wanted to begin construction of the Canadian storage dams at "the earliest possible moment."

Mr. Pearson, after being told there is no assurance of a 1961 construction start, questioned a statement in a new trade department pamphlet to the effect that federal funds would be spent on the dams this year.

Trade Minister Hees said the government hopes construction will "get under way as soon as possible."

MPs Plead for Preservation of Past

Old homes, old forts, ships, farm machines, tools, guns—just about anything old with a Canadian flavor should be saved and savored for the future.

That was the gist of pleas to preserve the past aired by many MPs Wednesday.

Their ideas ranged from an appeal to save the St. Roch, the RCMP ship that first navigated the Arctic west to east through the Northwest Passage, to a suggestion that museums be spotted across Canada where old implements and tools could be displayed.

They also pressed the government for greater efforts to open up and develop the national parks for recreation.

The spate of ideas and inspiration developed during Commons study of the northern affairs department appropriations of $25,861,000 for the National Parks Service and the Historical Sites and Monuments Board.

One MP wasn't at all impressed by the historic sites and monuments in Canada.

Drummond Clancy (PC—Yorkton) said they are a national disgrace.

"You flash by on the highway and you see a rather rustic sign, two posts and two garbage cans," he said. "When you pull in from the highway, you cannot read the sign any way."

A general overhauling of the National Parks Act and the government parks policy was urged by Art Smith (PC—Calgary South), whose constituency borders on the Bow

COWS KILLED

ABBOTSFORD — Twelve Holstein cows were killed Wednesday when struck by lightning near here. Farmer Edwin Dyck was about to bring some of the animals into a barn when the lightning struck a tree where the animals had gathered for shelter during a storm.

The British Isles, once far and away the largest source of newcomers to this country, were surpassed a year ago by Italy. Now figures for the first quarter of 1961 show they have also fallen behind the United States.

Italians remained in the number one spot, accounting for 2,892 of the 11,839 immigrants who arrived here in the January-March period. A year ago there were 4,350 Italians in a total inflow of 16,599.

Meanwhile, Immigration Minister Fairclough disclosed that the federal government spent some $5,800 in the past two years to advertise Canadian job opportunities in Britain.

She told the Commons the advertising covered a "large number" of job categories.

In Trans-Canada Reliability Test

Out of 125 cars, 41 different makes and models, a Studebaker Lark driven by J. D. Young and R. Hillary of Toronto, finished the gruelling week-long test in first position, with L. Lalonde and J. Jones, also of Toronto, driving another Lark, finishing close behind in second place (provisional results), once again proving Studebaker-Lark performance against all cars regardless of make or size—no surprise to Lark owners.

It will pay you to find out all about this award-winning, full-size passenger car now—THE STUDEBAKER-LARK.

Automobile watchers report:

LARKS ARE EVERYWHERE!

You too, have probably noticed the growing number of Studebaker Larks on the road—sedans, hardtops, station wagons, taxis—325,000 of them in North America.

Any Lark owner can give you many reasons why he or she selected the Lark—over so-called big cars, little cars, Canadian or foreign. You'll get comments like these: "I like the roominess and comfort. Nothing else I tried came close." "This Lark 6 sure has get-up-and-go. It's nice to feel you've loads of power to spare." "I'm convinced the Lark has better materials and workmanship—thicker gauge body metal and superior interior finish for instance." "From my very first demonstration I had a real feeling of confidence in the Lark, easy steering, sure braking—a solid feel." "The Lark is a car I can live with—its established style will never 'date' it." "I liked what my dollars would buy in initial cost and operating costs. And this Lark V-8 is surely a front-runner." Lark owners will also tell you "be sure to arrange a demonstration ride"—and that's good advice!

C.C.F. and Anti-Americanism

FOR THE INFORMATION OF Esquimalt-Saanich voters the C.C.F. has lately laid down a series of national policies to which its candidate presumably subscribes.

The major policy, coloring all others, is anti-Americanism. Mr. Douglas, who undoubtedly will lead the C.C.F. a few months hence, has left no doubt on that score. Quite deliberately, and with relish, he used his recent Victoria speech to make himself the supreme Canadian critic of the United States government and the American nation; also the chief advocate of Canadian neutrality.

Already the C.C.F., through its members in Parliament, had demanded that Canada withdraw from NATO and repudiate its alliance with the United States, Britain and Western Europe.

By this policy the C.C.F. would demand that the United States defend Canada—for we have no other defence—but Canada would do nothing to help it. Like Mr. Douglas in Victoria last week, we would be neutral and powerless but we would exercise the right of condemning the United States, denouncing its government and people, holding it up to the contempt of the world while insisting that it protect us.

Mr. Douglas goes further than that. He says that NATO should be put under the control of the United Nations, thus ignoring the fact that NATO was formed in the first place because the United Nations could not defend the free world, being at the mercy of a Russian veto. But, says Mr. Douglas, if NATO were dissolved the Russians, finding the free world utterly powerless, would perhaps turn its troops over to the United Nations also. Does Mr. Douglas really believe that?

These practical affairs evidently did not concern him much when he was here to win a byelection for the C.C.F. candidate. His mind was obsessed with hatred of the United States.

Though no one is so critical of the American government as its own people after the Cuban blunder, though no one knows so well as Mr. Kennedy that his first important act of foreign policy was a total fiasco, Mr. Douglas is not content to let him and his people repair their mistakes. The premier of Saskatchewan feels bound to tell the greatest power in the world how it shall behave.

Thus: "I'm not saying that Castro is democratic but the main thing against his regime is not political—it's because he crossed the vested interests of the U.S." Again: "The U.S. now wants to make the world safe for the United Fruit Company and Standard Oil." As a reporter at Mr. Douglas' meeting sums up, "he spoke far more against the U.S. than he did about the actions of the Russians."

The same sort of speeches, though less venomous in language, are being made by the C.C.F. members of Parliament. The United States, with a Communist base ninety miles from its shore (and not far from Canada) is represented as being solely interested in the profits of big business. The anti-U.S. campaign is rolling.

Certainly the candor of the C.C.F. in these great affairs is to be welcomed among the voters of Esquimalt-Saanich are asked to elect its candidate. They know now exactly where he stands. He asks them to vote for three things—socialism, neutralism and anti-Americanism, an interesting trinity.

The Conservative and Liberal parties, the former responsible for the nation's government, the latter likely to inherit it, are satisfied to express their objection to some American policies calmly, responsibly and as friends.

The C.C.F. and its local candidate don't want a friendly argument between inter-dependent allies under common peril. They want a quarrel. It is hardly surprising that Mr. Howard Green wobbled aloud in Parliament whether the C.C.F. wished him to declare war on the United States. Mr. Douglas has declared his private war already and asks Esquimalt-Saanich to endorse it.

No Questions: No Answers

IT WILL TAKE MUCH MORE than Mr. Fleming's reported shouting or Mr. Diefenbaker's reported scornful laughter to explain the government's refusal to have Mr. James E. Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, appear before a Commons committee.

Liberal requests that the nation's most influential economist be brought forward for parliamentary questioning were snubbed and rejected. The government's reluctance is interesting in view of Mr. Coyne's appearance before the Senate last month to reply to questions regarding his annual report.

Surely a parliamentary question-and-answer session would be of first importance to the country's efforts to solve its economic problems. Do the laughing Mr. Diefenbaker and the shouting Mr. Fleming feel that they have solved all the problems? Or what is the government afraid that Mr. Coyne will say?

Ceylon Draws the Blind

THE GOVERNMENT OF CEYLON is moving this month to take over the two biggest press groups in the country. In one more nation the light of criticism in print and free dissemination of information is going out.

As is so frequently the case, the government justifies its action by declaring its intent to insure the "democratic character of newspapers in this country and prevent formation of unhealthy monopolies."

Little More Peel's View-Hallo

A LARGE NUMBER OF MANITOBIANS are disturbed by a recent edict of the department of mines and natural resources requiring all hunters to wear white this year.

White, according to the departmental authorities, but not according to some other people, is the color showing up best in the woods. Hunters wearing it, unless they stood against a snow background, would be more easily seen by other hunters, the officials say.

The argument is familiar. This is the story usually told to the public in such cases.

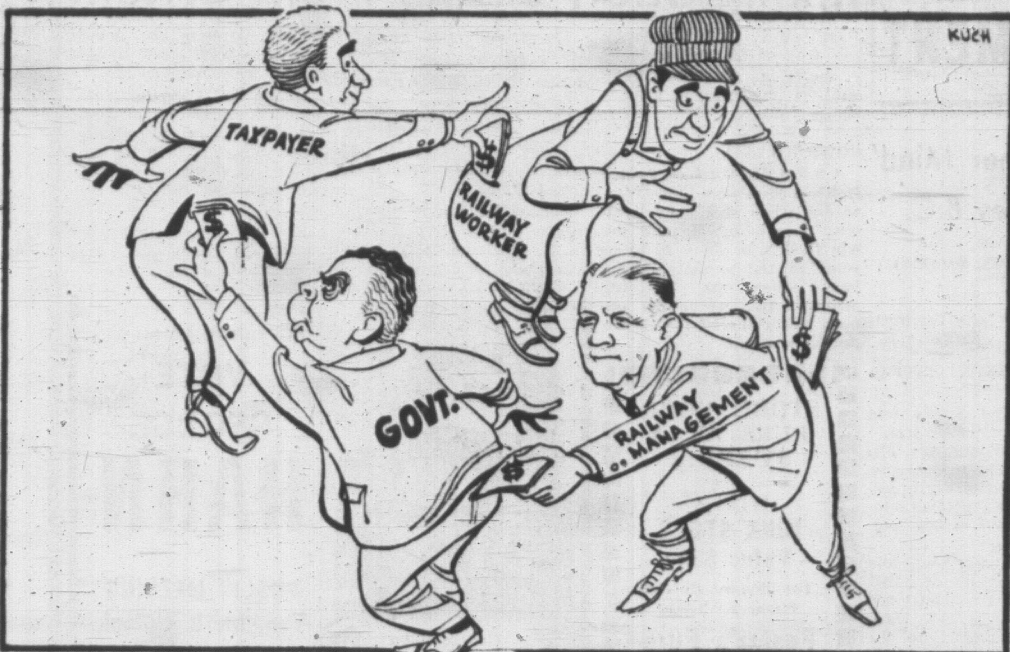

It is rebutted by the International Press Institute which last August commented:

"Government intrusion into newspaper ownership and forced sale of newspaper interests will mean the end of press freedom and can only undermine the government's intention to maintain the democracy which the people of Ceylon have so far enjoyed."

The point is contested by many who note that certain fluorescent are better—particularly a shade called Hunter Orange. They believe it would be safer.

But, with the number of inexperienced or careless people who hunt these days, is any color adequate? Certainly it would not protect a person against hunters who take "listening shots"—the kind fired at a noise in the thicket assumed by the rifleman to be made by a deer.

Politics Must Not Rear It's Ugly 'ead

THE good people of Esquimalt-Saanich have been wondering how, and by whom, the electoral signs of Mr. George Hahn, the Social Credit candidate, were smeared with black paint. As a result of intensive researches and brilliant detective work, I have solved the mystery. My neighbor, Mrs. Noggins, smeared Mr. Hahn.

Hutchison of course. She was merely the organizer of the conspiracy, the master mind. But though she is a life-long Conservative, she assures me that this effort was entirely non-partisan.

The people who went about with paint brushes in the dead of night were not activated by political motives at all; they were solely concerned with the beauty of Esquimalt-Saanich, the appearance of the roadside, the protection of nature.

INDEED, representatives of all parties (even a Social Credit who put nature ahead of partisanship) joined in this patriotic work. The conspirators all disagreed about politics but they were unanimous about nature.

Hence Mrs. Noggins' own views of the byelection must not be taken to represent the views of the gallant Esquimalt-Saanich underground.

"The important thing," she told me, "is to keep politics out of the byelection. And that's what us Conservatives are doing, you may be sure. Imagine, at a serious time like this, interjecting politics and all like that when the people's minds should be on 'igher things. It's scandalous."

BUT the other parties 'ave no respect for anybody or anything. They're actually talkin' about the budget, and taxes, and trade and defence and all sorts of nasty ideas as if that was any of their business. Who do they think they are I'd like to know?

"I tell you, sir, the country 'as come to a pretty pass when the people start to argue about the public business that should be left to a government as understands it. Leave policy to Mr. Diefenbaker, I say, and let us get on with the byelection."

"YOU can trust our candidate to make sure that politics will never rear its ugly 'ead in this fair constituency. No, sir, 'e won't divide the people with controversy by endorsing the government that he represents."

"But the trouble is that the government endorses 'im. Even this government, honest as it is, sometimes can't resist the temptation to play politics and win byelections. You might almost think that the government wants to stay in office but we may be confident that in the end it will rise above such sordid things. In the meantime it's 'ard on our candidate when the government seems to be supportin' 'im."

"As usual, the other parties won't play the game, fair and square. Why, when some cabinet ministers from Ottawa 'appen to be in this vicinity in the course of their duties they're accused of supportin' our candidate. You can't go any lower than that. The fact is they made no speeches, they never mentioned public business, they refused to get down in the dirt and argue about policies, they respected our candidate too much to drag 'im into politics and maybe defeat 'im."

BUT with the other parties nothink is sacred, not even the government. Wot's democracy comin' to when these fellas start interferin' with the private business of the voters? I tell you, the free society will collapse if people keep peekin' away at it and the first thing you know government itself will fall into the 'ands of politicians. That tragedy must 'unt Mr. Diefenbaker who 'as plenty of trouble without worryin' about votes."

"Well, we're not goin' to 'ave any politics in Esquimalt-Saanich. So we got together and smeared those signs. Like Mr. Gaglardi, we're sorry for any inconvenience to Social Credit but democracy must take a stand somewhere before the public gets ideas and starts to interfere with the government which, as anyone can see, 'as no interest in the byelection and only asks to be left alone. Wot could be fairer than that?"

Fundamental to Security, and to Freedom

New York Times

AN issue fundamental to the security and to the freedom of the American people was raised by the President of the United States in his speech to the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. It is an issue that most immediately and directly affects the press in our free democratic society, and it is an issue that, especially since American participation in the fiasco of the Cuban landings became publicly known, has been deeply troubling thoughtful newspaper men throughout the country.

It is the question of how to reconcile, in the context of cold war and of the Communist technique of fighting that war, the basic American principle of the public's right to know with the basic necessity of maintaining the national security.

In time of open and declared war, the question is regularly posed, but the solution is relatively simple. Under such circumstances, the need for censorship, even if it self-censorship, as it was in this country during the last war, is universally recognized and generally observed.

But cold war is different, and we are living in a period of cold war. It is a kind of war, and yet it is not war. For the preservation of our democratic society in this time of "clear and present danger" it is more essential than ever that the people be fully informed of the problems and of the perils confronting them.

This is a responsibility as much of the press as of the President. But it is equally essential that the secrets of military technique and—as the President said—"covert preparations to counter the enemy's cover operations," be kept inviolate.

On matters affecting policy the people must know so that the people in the last analysis can decide; but the terrible difficulty arises in that twilight zone where the revelation of military secrets might affect immediately and adversely the security of the country, and yet where the withholding of information might involve deception of the public. This is a problem that no society but our kind of open democracy faces; and it is because the maintenance of our kind of open society is so precious that the dilemma is so terrible.

The President did not attempt to solve the problem, but he did ask American journalists, to apply something more than the mere test of "is it news?" He asked that we also apply the test of "is it in the national interest?"—an unsatisfactory test because it is so subjective, and yet one that in the context of the present day must also be applied.

No formula can be entirely satisfactory. Certainly censorship is not, and complete licence is not, either. The best for the moment is to take seriously the President's request for self-restraint. Along with this ought to go greater accessibility of officials, so that newspaper men may have frank and informed advice on the harm that might come from revelation of a discovered secret.

WASHINGTON:

The Larger Interest

By MAX FREEDMAN

THE Kennedy Administration has always been impressed by the non-commercial aims of the Common Market. Under the Rome treaty the Common Market contemplates the removal of barriers to movement of people, capital and labor—common fiscal, monetary and anti-trust policies, and freedom of corporate establishments. It also envisages an independent executive and assembly, and the latter could eventually be elected directly by the people.

By contrast, the Outer Seven merely aimed at a limited elimination of internal tariffs. The United States insisted on one point in the past: that an arrangement which contemplated only acceptance of certain commercial arrangements was not good enough, because it tended to weaken some of the important elements leading to economic unity in the Common Market.

In trying to achieve this greater unity in Europe the Kennedy administration will give the first importance to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

The OECD has several major advantages. In the first place, it is a place where the various governments, including the Canadian government, can agree on common internal economic policies. The American balance of payments deficits are illustrative of what can be done in the new organization.

While the United States has a deficit, there is a surplus in Germany, Italy and The Netherlands, thus reflecting a disequilibrium in the western community. The reason is clear.

No Difficulty

If the Germans had a different interest rate but their prices rose with world prices and their costs kept pace with world costs, there would be no difficulty. But Germany may attract short-term capital by a higher interest rate and German goods may still be low priced in world markets. Thus the problem would be doubly aggravated. The OECD by consultation will try to achieve a rough equality in the rates of interest for all members.

Secondly, the OECD will seek to establish a common commitment to policies of greater economic growth for the North Atlantic community and its associated members. If one country follows a restrictive or deflationary policy, it can create a capital flow in the wrong direction. A long-term flow results from a differential in wage rates, and a short-term flow results from disequilibrium in interest rates.

We have never before been able to reach an understanding on such points. At least the attempt to achieve such an understanding will now be made.

Thirdly, the OECD will assist in bringing aid to the less developed countries. There is a large measure of agreement between London and Washington on these four points:

(a) Greater amounts of aid.
(b) Emphasis on long-term loans and grants rather than on commercial credits.
(c) Aid on the basis of capacity to pay.

(d) A procedure providing for a full time chairman—who will be an American—of the Development Assistance Group and an increased flow of information into the common fund. There has been no mechanism for common collection of information until now. The proposed mechanism would show what the lender is doing as well as what the recipient is getting. Thus it will help to place new loans and produce a greater co-operative effort. This is a major step forward.

Trade Policy

Fourthly, the OECD may act as a forum on trade policy in which the United States may exercise influence on the disputes between the Common Market and the Outer Seven. It is also the place for discussions on future trade policies for the NATO community.

We must provide a market for the products of less developed countries. This involves common acceptance of an important obligation and it is an obligation about which there has been very little discussion or public understanding.

It will clearly be self-destructive to help the new countries to move towards industrialization and then to deny access to their products. The NATO community must not only begin to think in terms of its own economic unity; it must also think of co-operation with the less developed nations.

President Kennedy thinks it will be "frustrating" for other countries to have us help them to develop their economies, and then for us not to permit them to earn foreign exchange. He believes that "the small-national state has outlived its purpose." He wants the emphasis placed on the "larger economic interest" of the free world.

Portuguese Authorities are Prepared to Kill 100,000 Angolans to 'Stop the Rot'

By Andrew Wilson, From Leopoldville

THE aeroplanes come over nearly every day now. They bomb the forest with fire bombs, and when we run into the open they shoot us with their guns. There are no more villages, they have all been burned."

The little Angolan who said this was one of several hundred who arrived this week at the headquarters of the Angolan resistance movement—an unlikely-looking pink and green-washed building in the heart of Leopoldville's elite indigene.

Like the rest, he brought such a picture of events in Northern Angola that but for confirmation of Portuguese vengeance by Western observers in Luanda one would accept it only with reservations.

Twenty thousand Africans are reported to have been killed. Thousands more are in four concentration camps, Baia dos Tigres, Damba, Porto Alexandre and Silva Porto. Thirty thousand refugees cram villages along the Congo railway between Matadi and Thysville.

The present wave of slaughter started seven weeks ago, and followed an earlier one, in Luanda, in February.

It began on March 15, at a coffee plantation called "Primavera" near San Salvador do Congo. The evening before—according to nationalist sources, which, due to the refusal of the Portuguese authorities to admit further correspondents, are now the only ones—forced laborers approached their employer for pay. The employer is said to have insulted them and shot several dead. The remainder overwhelmed him. By morning the Europeans on neighboring plantations were "shooting at every African they saw."

The Africans organized themselves into bands of 200 and 300, armed with sticks, stones and petrol. They attacked every European house in the district and killed any Portuguese they could find.

From San Salvador the uprising spread "like a powder train" across the whole of Congo Province, south into the neighboring provinces of Malanje and Luanda, and at the beginning of April to Nova Lisboa and other towns on the Elisabethville-Benguela railway.

Military forces were obliged to withdraw on a handful of forts like Maquela and Quibaxi, leaving 900 miles of the Congolese frontier and 40,000 square miles of the interior virtually undefended. The nationalists estimate the number of Portuguese and mulattoes killed in the uprising at 1,000.

In the first few days some sorties were made, and stratagems used, to terrorize the insurgents.

At the village of Sangi on March 17, jets arrived with Angolan soldiers in mufti wearing the badge of the chief nationalist party—the Union of Angolan Peoples, who told the villagers that the struggle had been won. When a crowd had gathered the soldiers opened fire with machine-guns and killed 18 of them.

Two days later, at another village, Tumbi, a car with a loud-hailer drove through and announced that "the king" of the UPA was arriving by aeroplane. An aircraft actually appeared. When the crowd had assembled troops converged on the village "and killed three hundred."

At Tomboko the inhabitants were surrounded in the centre of the village. Mothers with children were allowed to stand to one side. Then, it is said, the rest of the population—men, boys and women without children—were shot down with machine-guns.

Later, with the arrival of first troop and air reinforcements at Maquela and San Salvador, the Portuguese staged a comeback. White families, including the few remaining women and children, organized themselves into an armed militia. Mobile columns and, increasingly, air strikes, were used to obliterate village after village.

The names of 50 villages are given by the UPA, and another party, the Zombo Alliance, together with a heap of metal machine-gun bullets, bomb splinters, fragments of a napalm bomb brought out by refugees. There is also a list, drawn up before the reported wholesale killing—overwhelmed such documentation, of 103 people executed in northern villages or on Maquela do Zombo airfield.

Statistics of the dead are seldom moving. It is only when one comes on an intimate detail that "Ngaimoko Vanuel" was a tailor; or that the clothing of 25 executed miners was returned to their wives by the local military commander, that one is touched by the human tragedy.

Whatever brutalities may have been committed against the Portuguese settlers, they could never justify such wholesale revenge. Attempts to distinguish between innocent and guilty persons, and even between villages, seem to have been abandoned.

"We shall stay here, alive or dead," a senior Government official told a visiting British businessman in Luanda this week, and an army officer admitted that the authorities were prepared to kill 100,000 Angolans to save the north from "the rot."

At the moment the nationalists claim to control a tract of devastated country 200 miles wide and 350 deep. But their prospects of holding it much longer are slim.

Recent reinforcements have increased Portuguese strength to 17,000 armed men. The impending arrival of two troops, the Vera Cruz and the San Tome, will bring it up to 25,000. When this has been achieved and the rains stop, in about four weeks time, the Portuguese are expected to launch a "once and for all" military operation.

Against this, the nationalists have only their sticks, a few arms taken from Portuguese dead and deserters, and the non-military aid of a group of Afro-Asian nations led, unexpectedly, by Tunisia.

Their attitude to the UN is based on the hope that it will enter Angola with a task force. To the Western nations it is one of puzzlement. "Britain and America are democratic countries," said one of them, handling the napalm bomb fragments which had arming instructions rather prominently printed in English. "Why do you still support Portugal through NATO?" (London Observer Service)

'How Dull to Pause...'

THE boss of our house has fallen into a practice which disturbs my restless heart. Over our quiet cup of tea after dinner she says: "Just one year ago today we were in..." and she mentions a European city. Then she adds "Remember..." and recalls highlights of the trip we made last May.

Stott

This should release a flood of pleasant memories to bear me on a tide of recaptured enjoyment. Instead it gives me that frustrated Ulysses feeling: "How dull it is to pause..."

I want to be off again, a wide-eyed small town boy amazed and delighted by the ways of people in foreign lands, savoring their customs, impressed by their spectacles, excited by the strangeness of it all.

It's fine to recall the night view from the little balcony off our third-floor hotel room in Dinant, with the moon shining on the Meuse, illuminated bridges arcing over the river, a monastery silhouetted against the midnight blue sky on the hill rising from the other bank.

But I want to feel the air again, smell the night scents, catch the sound of voluble talkers at the sidewalk table down below. I hanker for the surprises that come when I order a late snack in what I think is French but is patently not to the waitress.

I want the feeling of newness that comes with first visits to the very old in lands and towns that were cultivated when my country was still wilderness.

I want to dine again in countries where dining is an art and a full evening's entertainment, on different and tasty dishes, with the wine of the country, cheap and delicious, at hand.

I want to sit at a sidewalk cafe and watch the people of distant cities pass by, to note the difference in their dress, the attitude to one another which, for all its sameness, is not that of Canadians or North Americans.

I want to pass through villages where the big house of the community shares a common wall with the big barn and where, inconceivable though true, the mark of distinction is a big manure pile rising from the sidewalk's edge.

I'd like to hear Italians shouting pleasures to one another in tones that sound like anger to Canadian ears but are simply conversation to them. I'd enjoy an evening in the cellar cabaret across from the Pantheon in Rome, where a troubadour with a flair for extemporaneous rhyme composes outrageous love songs to feminine guests and ribald ditties to the cheque-paying men.

I want to look over the cut stone basin which catches the rivulets forming the source of the Danube in the Black Forest town of Donaueschingen, see it crystal clear again, and then wander back up quaint streets where toymakers' shops show wonderful little costumed dolls.

"Just a year ago today..." the boss of our house says, and the mind's eye pictures famous cathedrals, startlingly modern monuments in ancient cities, works of art in storied castles that are now museums, snow fields crowding above your shoulders in the Alps, tired plains and steep hillsides that have supported vineyards for centuries.

I think with envy of Dorothy McCann flying to London with the possible prospect of a continental journey. It doesn't help to receive a postcard from Jim Nesbitt saying, "Once more I hated to leave Japan. Headed now for Hong Kong." Nor do letters satisfy me from Mrs. D. J. Huntley, motoring through Europe and telling me of the 25 olives she ate at a magnificent dinner on the Cote d'Azur.

At home the lady of the house strums the chords of memories just 12 months old. They recall experiences and scenes stimulating in themselves. But the memories aren't quite enough. Like the old boy from Ithaca I want to move on again.

Granted—some good luck and the publisher's blessings, by cracky, I will next year.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Music for the Housewife

LONDON—Here's a nostalgic note for English housewives who have become New Canadians.

Reyburn

They'll be interested to know that their favorite radio program, Housewives' Choice, is still going strong. It has just celebrated its 15th birthday and—despite television—shows no falling off at all in popularity.

This 55-minute record request session (there's a five-minute religious spot at the end of it) comes on each morning at just the right time for housewives—nine o'clock, when father has been got off to work and the kids to school and mother has a little tea-break before getting down in earnest to the housework.

It was started in 1946 by the BBC as a sort of "welcome home" program for the women of Britain who had been away in the services or working in war plants.

It goes heavy on such numbers as The Best Mum in the World (requested by her loving children Mabel, Jessie and Bert), Greensleeves (for all at No. 22 Chestnut Grove) and My Heart Is in the Highlands (in memory of a wonderful holiday spent with Mrs. McTool and her family).

No jazz or rock, invariably on the sentimental side, it has built up over the years a listener audience of 9,000,000, as near as makes no difference to every household in Britain. Always conducted, now, by men, they take turns at doing it in three-week stints at a time.

The BBC once got the idea of letting well-known women personalities have a go at spinning the discs. They thought the housewives would like the woman-to-woman atmosphere. But immediately the BBC was flooded with letters—"Take them off! Give us back our men!"

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Stagger Bush Bean Planting

Beans like a warm soil for germination, a soil which is moist but not wet enough to cause seeds to rot. The germinating temperature for the bush type is around 60 degrees F., and for the pole or climbing varieties a few degrees higher, about 65 degrees or a little better.

Jack

These temperatures are difficult to secure in the open garden at this time of year, but the smart gardener uses a few tricks to improve matters.

First, he selects the warmest part of the garden, a spot where the sun strikes for most of the day and where strong wind will not have too great a cooling effect.

Next, he sows the seed not more than one inch deep so that it lies just under the surface in the zone of greatest warmth. The usual sowing depth is at least twice this, so he starts with a shallow trench which is filled in to the surrounding level as the bean sprouts elongate.

To prevent a lot of the beans from becoming too old for use and at the same time save the housewife having to serve beans for every meal for a month, the bush varieties may be sown at two-week intervals from mid-May until the beginning of August.

As with the garden peas and the sweet peas, frequent picking is essential to keep the plants producing young pods, otherwise the plants will try to mature the seed in a few of the more advanced pods and refuse to make any more flowers.

Instructors' Swim Course Next Month

Victoria Red Cross Society's water safety service will hold its instructors' course this year at Royal Roads swimming pool.

The course—to train instructors up to Red Cross standard—will be held over three weeks ends next month—June 10 and 11, 17 and 18, and 24 and 25.

Officials are hoping to get at least 20 applicants to take the course this year but are prepared to handle any number in excess of that figure.

For anybody who cares to attend, there will be an hour-long "brush-up" course for swimmers at the Crystal Garden pool on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Information on the above two courses can be obtained at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, EV 2-3159.

'Slaying Our Trees'

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor

Charlotte Whitton Tuesday accused subdividers of "slaying the beautiful trees of our city" for housing developments.

During a board of control discussion on ways of curbing Dutch elm disease in the city, Miss Whitton said subdividers have done more damage to elm trees in six weeks than Dutch elm disease has in the last six years.

LIKE CANADA DEBATE

Norway Ponders Atom Arms Issue

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OSLO (CP)—In this lovely city the issue of nuclear weapons seems as far removed as it would be from a Canadian prairie farm.

But the Norwegians, dedicated to such sturdy pursuits as walking and skiing, have been wrestling with this issue since the United States first offered atomic weapons to its European allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The problem here bears a striking resemblance to the Canadian debate on the same subject.

After another recent government review and parliamentary debate, Norway has confirmed its decision not to acquire nuclear weapons in peacetime.

WANT STRONG DECISION

But some Norwegians feel the government hasn't been as definite as it could have been. That's why there are still ban-atomic weapons parades through the neat and tidy streets of this city of nearly 500,000 healthy, well-dressed people.

The atomic weapons which have been the subject of debate here are anti-aircraft missiles, short-range artillery rockets and air-to-air missiles for fighter planes—the very same weapons which are at the centre of the Canadian debate. Like their Canadian counterparts, the Norwegian military favored acquisition of nuclear weapons.

Atomic warheads would be in Norway, strictly for defensive weapons. Norway has a common border with Russia. It has still said no to atomic weapons, even defensive atomic weapons, on its soil.

The main reason for this attitude is that Norway, in common with Denmark and Sweden, doesn't want Finland to be dragged into the Communist camp. If Norway obtained atomic weapons, Russia would tighten the screws on Finland.

The Norwegian government, like Canadian External Affairs Minister Howard Green, is opposed to the spread of nuclear weapons.

The recent Norwegian confirmation of its stand on nuclear weapons leaves Canada the only NATO country which hasn't made up its mind on the issue.

Some of Canada's NATO allies are said to be getting fed up with the Canadian delay in reaching a decision. But Green is more worried about Canada's position in the United Nations if it accepts nuclear weapons.

Green is also well aware of the contempt this is not too strong a word for him in the U.S. defence department. He doesn't stay awake nights over this.

60,000 Flee Angola

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)

About 60,000 refugees have poured into the lower Congo from the Portuguese territory of Angola in recent weeks, bringing fears of famine and epidemics, it was revealed here Wednesday.

Gaston Diomi, vice-president of the "State of Leopoldville," who has just visited the refugee areas west of Leopoldville where the refugees are concentrated, said many of them were sick and without housing, he told a press conference.

In the Congo's own grave situation, the influx of normal population of 120,000 refugees has created terrible problems of health, feeding and housing, he told a press conference.

In one village which had a normal population of 120, there were 1,500 refugees, Diomi reported.

POLYMER CORP. ENDS DEBT TO TAXPAYERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Polymer Corporation Ltd., Canada's Crown-owned synthetic rubber company, has more than wiped out its debt to Canadian taxpayers, the Commons public accounts committee was told this week.

E. R. Rowzee of Sarnia, Ont., president of the firm, said that from the $48,500,000 initial investment by the federal treasury, the company has built a $100,000,000 plant with $30,000,000 in working capital, and has paid $100,000,000 back to the treasury — about $40,000,000 of it in taxes.

Maxwell Henderson, auditor general of Canada, said the company had its best year in 1960 — paying $3,000,000 in dividends to the federal treasury.

AT NEW YORK International Nickel, reporting lower earnings, dipped 1 1/2 in the Canadian section. Walker Gooderham and Distillers Seagrams also eased. Galt's Power and McIntyre Petroleum advanced fractions.

AT MONTREAL stocks were mainly narrowly mixed on the stock exchange today. Foods, papers and banks were moderately active.

AT LONDON stock market prices moved higher today, property issues continued in strong demand. Gilt-edged were generally higher. South African gold and oils were firm but losses predominated among dollar issues.

AT VANCOUVER mines showed considerable trading, oils were quiet and industrial light during the morning. Bethlehem Copper was at $15.7. Bralorne traded at $6. Coughlin Copper moved at $3. Grandeur at $3.60. Mt. Washington Copper ranged between 65 and 70.

Gas Discount Discrimination Rules Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — For the second time in a week a government commission has frowned on long-term contracts whereby an oil company grants a price discount in order to get the business of an independent gasoline dealer.

The restrictive trade practices commission, in a report, said that this constitutes price discrimination unless a similar discount is given to competing dealers.

Bank Rate Eases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada interest rate eased marginally to 3.45 per cent today from the 3.47 per cent last week with the sale of $35,000,000 in 91-day government treasury bills.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flax prices were hesitant today on the Winnipeg grain exchange with a decline of export interest.

There were no reports of overseas sales of Canadian flax on feed grains during the session.

Traders said the situation was due to the closure of many continental markets because of a public holiday.

Trade on the oats and barley markets was mainly domestic with a few feed supply orders providing the activity.

The rye trade was both slow and local.

Overnight loading of Canadian wheat: United Kingdom 755,000 bushels, Germany 400,000, Japan 500,000, China 500,000, Switzerland 505,000, Belgium 300,000, Malta 365,000 and Italy 800,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all up 1/2 from Wednesday.

Indonesia imported about 330,000,000 yards of textiles last year.

LONG FEUD AT END?

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — The long-simmering feud between King Hussein of Jordan and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic appeared to be ended today in the interests of Arab unity. The two Middle East leaders have agreed to forgive and forget their past misunderstandings and to meet soon to discuss future co-operation and policy.

Divorces Hit Twelve-Year Record High

OTTAWA (CP) — A total 6,898 marriages broke up, on the divorce rocks last year, the largest number in 12 years.

The preliminary figure on divorces granted, reported today by the bureau of statistics, may go higher with additional reports from Ontario. It compares with 6,542 divorces granted in 1959 and the record 8,213 in 1947 at the peak of the post-war divorce rush.

The rate increased last year in all but three provinces—Ontario, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan. As in the past, Ontario and British Columbia together accounted for about 65 per cent of the country's divorces.

Divorce totals last year for the western provinces, with the rate per 100,000 population in brackets:

Manitoba 361.40; Saskatchewan 213.24; Alberta 951.74; British Columbia 1,592.99.

Sovereignty Surrender Condemned

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Leaders of African nations meeting here adopted a statement of principles Wednesday aimed at recognizing the sovereignty of all.

A communique said the leaders, all heads of government of pro-western or non-committed nations, "regarded as totally unrealistic any conception of unity which entails the surrender of the sovereignty of any African state to another."

This was obviously aimed at Ghana, which is not represented among the score of nations at the Monrovia talks but which has talked of acquiring territory in Togo and Ivory Coast.

The convention was called to promote better understanding and co-operation among African nations.

Police Continue Investigation Of Damaged Cars

City police and juvenile officers are still investigating five cases of damage done to autos while parked on city streets Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

In every case, upholstery and seats had been slashed and the bodies scored with a sharp knife. Owners discovered the damage in the morning in each case.

Owners are: Richard Rollson, 1210 Haultain; Harold Glenerson, 2101 Chambers; Nick Lund, 34 Helmcken; R. C. Campbell, 1207 Walnut and Robert John Henry, 2127 Chambers.

Addicts, Alcoholics Sick, Not Criminals

Realization that delinquents, drug addicts and alcoholics are "socially ill" rather than criminal is urged in the report of the American Psychiatric Association.

Such persons, it says, require "treatment" rather than harsh punishment.

However, adequate security must always be maintained to protect the community, it says.

It proposes a number of specialized units to handle social offenders in areas where there are specific needs.

EXCITED POET HAD NOSE BLEED

Britain Honors Writers

LONDON (Reuters) — The Royal Society of Literature has named "the first five immortals"—recipients of Britain's new award of Companion of Literature.

The honors went to five octogenarian writers—Somerset Maugham, 87; Sif Winston Churchill, 86; Dr. G. M. Trevelyan, 85; John Masfield, 82, and E. M. Forster, 81.

Also selected was T. S. Eliot, 73, but he declined the honor. The award carries no financial remuneration but its recipients are entitled to put the letters "C. Litt." after their names.

The ages of the five new companions of literature total 421 years and only two of them, novelist Somerset Maug-

ROSS REPORT 'LEAKED' TO LEGISLATURE

Mental Health Advice Already Taken

The B.C. government "jumped the gun" on the Ross report by implementing a number of its recommendations at the last session of the legislature.

Although the report was not made public until today Health Minister Eric Martin handed out plenty of clues about its contents when he announced mental health policy to the legislature.

Major emphasis in his policy is on construction and the chief projects were a new mental hospital for Victoria and a mental health centre for the Okanagan. These are both leading Ross report recommendations.

Other recommendations of the report which Mr. Martin has already said will be followed include a maximum security unit at Essondale hospital, in-patient facilities for children at the Burnaby mental centre health centre.

The report recommends a new 700-bed unit at Tranquille for emotionally disturbed children. Mr. Martin told the House that 140 children

Building Plan On Big Scale Required

A 450-bed centre for the mentally-retarded and an adult mental health clinic are recommended as well as a new hospital for Vancouver Island in the report of the American Psychiatric Association, released today by the B.C. government.

Although it recommends a massive building program, the report says that present mental hospitals are too large, and that the trend should be toward decentralization.

Therefore its proposed projects are spread across the province. At the same time, says the report, there must be more emphasis on community care, including clinics and local hospital treatment, particularly for children.

Few at Colquitz 'Criminally Insane'

It is gloomy, run down and treatment facilities are inadequate, says the APA. Originally intended to house criminally insane, now only 10 per cent of its 291 beds are used for this purpose.

"This is an isolated, poorly equipped and inappropriate unit for custodial care," says the report.

Health Minister Eric Martin announced in the legislature this year that as soon as Victoria's new hospital is built "we will close Colquitz."

Other new facilities proposed in the report:

• A new medical and surgical wing containing 100 beds at Essondale; a new maximum security unit and narcotic treatment centre there;

• A residential treatment unit for children at the Burnaby Mental Health Centre;

• A centre for mentally-retarded children and a 500-bed mental health centre including a geriatric unit in the Okanagan Valley;

• Doubling the Coquitlam

Essondale, In General, Approved

Generally, Essondale gets a good bill of health from the Ross report. But it does propose an increase in recreational therapy and provision of surgical wards.

Woodlands School for the mentally retarded is "severely overcrowded," says the report. The APA found that many of the buildings, including the school, industrial shops and therapy department were inadequate. Fire hazards and poor washrooms were singled out for criticism.

Woodlands itself should be expanded to include a day-care program for children unable to attend regular schools for the retarded and staff should be greatly increased.

The development of Tranquille into another Woodlands would involve transfer of many patients and also would enable enrolment of many interior patients now unable to receive care.

Appointment of a physician trained in child psychiatry is urged to administer the provincial program. He would act "as friend to children."

The report also recommends establishing a special unit for handicapped children in present plans for a new medical centre on the University of B.C. campus.

The Sevenoaks Children's Home in Victoria, although it only has eight patients, was praised warmly.

More such centres were strongly urged in communities.

ham and poet laureate John Masfield, were present in person to receive the awards.

Masfield was so overcome at receiving his award that his nose started to bleed and he had to be taken out for first aid.

"I haven't been to a party in 40 years," he said. Winston Churchill was represented by his daughter, Mrs. Christopher Soames.

"Father is very well indeed but he doesn't go out these days so I've come to represent him," Mrs. Soames said.

MAUGHAM LIVELY
Maugham, who made a special trip from his Riviera villa to attend the investiture, sat in a chair and said:

Facilities For Aged Necessary

Special facilities for Vancouver Island's large population of elderly citizens are urged in Victoria's new mental hospital by the Ross report.

The report says that 32,350, or 12.6 of the Island's population is over 65. The national average is 7.8 per cent. In the lower mainland it is 11.8 per cent.

"Many people from all over B.C. and Canada settle on Vancouver Island after retirement because of the relatively mild climate," it says.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

A Victoria brief to the Ross survey team said that caring for "disturbed seniles" is perhaps the greatest local problem.

A provincial program, linked with community services, is urged for prevention, research and treatment rehabilitation.

"To preserve respect, to encourage independence, to combat loneliness and to prevent financial insecurity should be the overall goals of such a program."

The report says communities, with provincial assistance, should develop programs for caring for their own elderly citizens.

CITIES HARD HIT

At the same time, hospital facilities should be available regionally to care for the infirm and mentally ill. This, says the report, is particularly necessary in Victoria and Vancouver, and should include a geriatric unit in the new Victoria hospital.

Provincial licensing and inspection of all private homes for the aged is proposed.

Overall planning and research should be conducted by a special committee.

This should include health, welfare, corrections, and mental health officials from the government, as well as representatives from voluntary agencies, foundations, the medical profession and churches.

Existing B.C. laws dealing with the mentally ill are inadequate, archaic, unnecessarily complicated and sometimes degrading, says the Ross report.

The report says voluntary admission of patients to mental institutions should be encouraged as much as possible.

Otherwise, a certificate from two physicians, with one preferably a psychiatrist are proposed. Any patient who feels unjustly retained in hospital should have the right to appeal to a court for a sanity hearing.

Hospitals should be allowed to discharge patients they feel can return to a community and this should be also done if further treatment will not help.

A division of legal medicine is urged in the provincial mental health services department.

All persons indicted for a capital offence or who have been previously indicted for a felony should be referred for psychiatric examination, says the report.

It also proposes that all persons, whatever their origin or circumstances should be entitled to care, and in laws themselves, the emphasis should be on treatment and rehabilitation rather than incarceration.

Woodlands School for the mentally retarded is "severely overcrowded," says the report. The APA found that many of the buildings, including the school, industrial shops and therapy department were inadequate. Fire hazards and poor washrooms were singled out for criticism.

Mr. Martin pointed out in the House that up to now the emphasis on mental care has been in centralization, hospital facilities and custody.

"This concept has changed completely," he told the legislature. "Obviously it is much better to have treatment take place in one's own home environment since the constantly maintained contacts with the complex of one's life threads contributes greatly to the potentialities of recovery."

"It will be the policy of this government to aid and encourage local communities in the quest for active mental health programs," he added.

Mr. Martin's announcements, while welcomed in the House, did not bring much speculation in relation to the Ross report.

Members on all sides of the House were more engrossed in a drawn-out battle between government and Opposition over release of the report itself, finally withheld until, now.

Lack of Staff Main Handicap

Recruiting Drive for Nurses Urged, Stressing Better Pay, Training

Better pay, better training and a recruiting drive are urged in the Ross report to boost staffs of mental health services in B.C.

The report devotes one of its longest chapters to staff problems.

But, it says, B.C.'s needs are the same as those in other public health systems.

"They are also no different in that there are not now available an adequate number of trained professional and technical personnel and in that many of these personnel do not receive adequate compensation for, or recognition of these services."

Research Needs To Be Done Here

"B.C.'s mental health problems will not be solved by research done in Europe, New York State, or in other parts of Canada," says the report.

"It has to develop its own research program to breathe new life into the professional work of the provincial mental health services."

The report says there were in 1959 40 psychiatrists practising in B.C. of which all are in the Victoria and Vancouver areas—an overall ratio of one to every 38,600 population. But, it points out there is not one psychiatrist to serve the

Co-operation With UBC In Training

The report says a shortage of personnel is likely to continue for some time. The provincial mental health service and the University of B.C. must co-operate in increasing training facilities, it says.

It proposes: A high school and college recruitment drive; loans and bursaries to help promising students win degrees; provision of recognized training program in B.C. for psychiatrists and psychologists who now have to go outside the province to complete studies; persuading psychiatrists to settle in larger outlying communities; higher pay for social workers and more training programs.

Other staff recommendations: Longer and more training for nurses; a licensed course for psychiatric nursing aides; better pay for occupational therapists.

The report congratulates the Canadian Mental Health Association for its volunteer work, and urges it to expand its volunteer recruitment and programming.

Pre-School Teaching Workshop Saturday

Arrangements have been made to hold a pre-school education workshop at Victoria College next Saturday, sponsored jointly by Victoria College and the University of British Columbia.

Kindergarten and primary teachers in public and private schools, directors of co-operative groups and public health personnel will discuss the transition of children from pre-school to school, on the theme, "What do we mean by readiness?"

The conference will be opened at 10 a.m. by Prof. R. B. Wallace and will continue until 3.30 in the afternoon.

EVERYBODY'S $200 IN DEBT, SAYS EXPERT

MONTREAL (UPI)—Hillel Black, a New York City credit buying analyst, says every man, woman and child in North America is more than $200 in debt and that companies sometime make more profit on finance charges than on the sale of the merchandise.

Black, author of "Buy Now, Pay Later," says he is not opposed to the idea of buying on time, but to people being swindled in the matter of finance charges which accompanied such purchases.

Black said Americans were worse off than Canadians as the total U.S. debt was $340 per person, against $202 for every Canadian.

Hopes Vanish for Plant Reopening

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Last ray of hope for re-opening of the Sidney Roofing plant here may have gone glimmering with the announcement from McMillan, Bloedel & Powell River Co. Ltd., that consideration is being given to building a pulp and paper board plant in Australia.

Chairman Gordon Bell J. V. Clyne made it clear some time ago that re-opening would be contingent on obtaining export markets.

Despite strenuous efforts,

Mr. Clyne said, the company had been unable to get enough United Kingdom or European business to warrant starting up the plant here. Now, with the disclosure that tariff barriers close off the Australian market, the chances of re-opening seem even less likely.

One of Victoria's biggest conventions so far this year gets under way at the weekend when an estimated 600 credit granters begin arriving for the 40th annual Retail Credit Conference of the Pacific Northwest.

Although the conference of officials gets underway Monday morning after a breakfast meeting sponsored by the Credit Women's Breakfast Club organization, most of the delegates will be on hand Saturday and Sunday for special events and business sessions. Value to this area of conventions such as this is indicated by a local estimate that delegates will spend about $120,000 during their four-day stay here.

Hosts for the convention which draws delegates from all parts of the U.S. Pacific Northwest and B.C. are members of the Credit Granters' Association of B.C. and conference chairman is H. L. Matthews.

British Aircraft Corp.'s Viscount jet airliners, successfully flown on most TCA short-haul runs now, including Victoria-Vancouver, is to be succeeded by a new craft tentatively named the BAC One-Eleven.

Allan J. Anderson, well-known as a mining engineer and as president of United Keno Hill Mines Ltd. and Giant Yellowknife Mines Ltd., has taken on a new role, according to an announcement from Dawson City.

He will head a campaign to raise $125,000 to finance a venture a little different for those with which he has been associated in the past—the Dawson City Festival which is to be the big event in the Gold Rush City in the summer of 1962.

Work has already been started on restoration of the famed Palace Grand Theatre, where main events of the festival will be staged, under direction of the federal historic sites commission.

Program for the festival is being planned by the Canadian Theatre Exchange of Stratford under the guidance of Stratford Festival president Tom Patterson.

PIPELINE CONTRACTS SET

Award of two contracts and start on the new crude oil pipeline from the Peace River to Kamloops was announced Wednesday by Transport Minister Earle Westwood.

Contractor for the northern section of the 500-mile $30,000,000 line is Canadian Bechtel Ltd. The southern portion will be built by Dutton-Williams Bros. Ltd.

The line is being built for Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipelines Ltd., a subsidiary of Westcoast Transmission Co.

Mr. Westwood said the pipeline will create 1,000 jobs this summer.

The line will run from Peace River oil fields through a main pumping station at Taylor Flats to Kamloops where it will connect with the Trans-Mountain line which runs to Vancouver refineries.

Esquimalt Holds Mill Rate Line

Esquimalt council has succeeded in holding the line on municipal taxes for 1961. The rate will be 39 mills—the same as in 1959 and 1960.

The current budget was approved at a little under $1,000,000, showing a slight drop from last year's budget which was just over $1,000,000.

The overall tax rate is made up from a general rate of 21 mills and a school rate of 18 mills.

Council stated after the meeting that some proposed expenditures for 1961, mostly parks and public works had been pared to maintain this rate. Capital work projects would also be slightly reduced.

LEGAL ADVICE TAKEN

In a prepared statement council said it "regrets it is unable to lawfully pay over to the Greater Victoria School district the federal school grant for 1960 in the amount of $180,000. This decision was made on the advice of both our solicitors and auditors."

The solicitors and auditors contended that an order-in-council approved by the provincial government last week to cover 1960 federal school grants was invalid.

The statement continued: "The amount will be paid upon passage of adequate provincial legislation providing the necessary legal authority."

However, Reeve Wurtele said Esquimalt is fully prepared in the meantime to meet its requisition of $219,677 for the municipalities share of Greater Victoria school costs.

The $180,000 will be applied to school costs at a future date.

'JFK Fails to Provide Leadership'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon said Wednesday he believed the greatest mistakes of President Kennedy's administration so far had been his missed opportunities for leadership and his heading in the wrong direction in the domestic field.

Nixon said that it was "essential that the public be told the facts and told what needs to be done instead of being told what the government will do for them."

Nixon told an airport news conference that President Kennedy had talked about a number of things "but all that has been done has been to send down to Congress a whole series of messages dealing with the domestic program on what the government would do for the people."

The 1960 Republican presidential candidate who lost to Kennedy last fall said it was his hope that Kennedy "will concentrate on the real problems during the next 100 days. The problem is the threat from abroad."

Nixon said that Kennedy had failed to provide the leadership necessary "to show the people what we should spend in the military and doing."

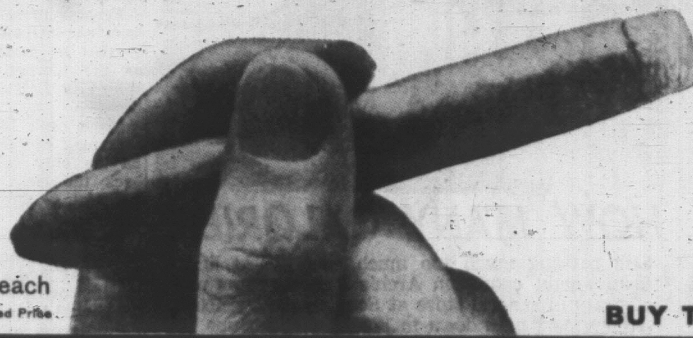

space fields and that it is necessary for them to sacrifice some of these domestic things."

He said, "You can never get anywhere by saying the country faces a great challenge from abroad and then turn around and soothe the people by telling them what the government will do for them. This is what the administration is doing."

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Some people are "keepers." Some are "losers." This one is a "keeper." His desk, his shirt pockets, his pant pockets forever overflow with valuable scraps of information. Like what time the ferry leaves on Sunday for Port Angeles, what size pants he's supposed to bring home for baby, and a nifty item about Churchill Downs having the world's biggest safe in its mutual department.

Naturally you want to know the monster's measurements. It runs seven feet tall, six feet wide and four feet deep.

That's Churchill Downs' baby, you understand. Mine is only five feet wide.

Anyway, before the shirts, pants and owner are flung into the washing machine, here's some buttons and bows, facts and rumors, vignettes and quotes you may have missed.

Harry Fillion, the nicest two fellows we know doing race-track public relations, says it's no wonder Portland Meadows is sagging at the mutual wickets.

"Take a look at the entries," says Fillion. "You'll see horses like Scottie D. Warplaid and Vito Segundo. Those three must be a hundred years old."

"Remember Bob's Reward?" He used to take a mile and a half to unkink up here. Down there he wins on opening day going five and a half furlongs.

Portland has other problems. The track asked the government for 10 extra racing days and taxation relief. Eager for fresh money, the government granted the extra days. But no tax relief.

With the play several furlongs behind last year's total (one reason: the last race goes to the post at 10:45 p.m. when the punters are so frozen they can't get their hands to their money). Portland this week told the government what to do with the extra days—keep them.

IF YOU BELIEVE IN RUMORS... Doug Bentley will be next coach of Vancouver Canucks if Art Chapman pitches his teepee in San Francisco with Coley Hall... Dennis Riggins will forsake hockey and Edmonton Flyers in favor of promoting sales for a brewery... Red Storey, the best unemployed hockey referee in the business, will become chief whistle-blower in the Western Hockey League.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES... Royal Brougham in the Seattle PI: "Canada is pitching hard for the 1968 Winter Olympics for Banff. They couldn't choose a more picturesque sight anywhere in the world."

DOWN THE ALLEY... It's disgusting what some bowlers will do to get their names in the paper... Take the Brentwood team of San Francisco... With absolutely no regard for the feelings of others who perspire frequently to attain an Everest of better than 500, they rolled three games of 1,181, 1,227 and 1,236... That's from scratch, fellow maple sufferers... Their total was the highest this side of Cuba this year... All they averaged was 240 per game... Here's how they scored:

Ed Bourdase	215	221	259	695
Vern Downing	213	233	248	694
Bob Wild	217	290	238	745
Jack Middleton	279	236	225	740
Joe Jacques	257	247	266	770
Totals	1,181	1,227	1,236	3,644

Wonder what they did with Downing, the low man with 694? Probably flung him off the Golden Gate Bridge. Serves him right. Messing up a good team score with a miserable 694!

IT TAKES ALL KINDS... A year ago Willie Hartack won the Kentucky Derby on Venetian Way... He snarled at reporters in the jockey room and other riders turned their backs on him... None offered even a perfunctory word of congratulations... When Johnny Sellers came into the room after Carry Back won this year's Derby (some nut said they would make a charming couple in the winners' circle), this was the reaction: Willie Shoemaker: "Wonderful, John, old boy." A more flippant Eddie Arcaro: "A fine job, kid." And Johnny Longden: "It couldn't happen to a nicer guy."

Somebody asked Sellers if he had been confident of victory.

"Maybe I did have a qualm at the head of the stretch," said Sellers. "But it was just a flash, then I was sure I'd catch Crozier. After all, the race was run just as planned. Carry Back broke well out of the gate but there was such a scramble that dirt kept hitting him in the face and he didn't like it one bit. Yet he gave whatever I asked him as I took the long way around on the outside."

This was one time when the long way around was the fastest way home... to $120,000.

Tim's Big Bat All Glen Needed

Slick pitching by Glen Bullen and the devastating bat of Tim Gowdy powered Sooke to a 6-0 victory over Farmers in a Senior "A" City Men's Softball League game at Sooke Wednesday night.

Bullen held Farmers to four hits, received all the batting aid he needed from Gowdy. The latter pounded a home run and single, key blows in Sooke's attack leading to the team's third victory without a loss.

PETER WARNER HAS 87 Lancashire Blasts Aussie Cricketers

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—The Australian cricketers Wednesday took a hammering on the opening day of their game against Lancashire at Old Trafford.

Lancashire put on 310 runs for seven wickets before declaring. In reply, the Australians lost two wickets for 78 runs at the close.

For Lancashire, 25-year-old Peter Warner hit three sixes and 11 fours for 87 and Jack Bond had 68.

Other close-of-play scores: Surrey 386 for 4 declared, Hampshire 19 for 1, Yorkshire 288 for 4 declared, Oxford University 41 for 3, Essex 328, Middlesex 82 for 2, Cambridge University 154, Leicester 107 for 1, Scotland 142, Warwickshire 130 for 6, Derbyshire 167, Kent 129 for 3, Sussex 332 for 6 declared, Glamorgan 49 for no wicket, Nottinghamshire 138, Worcestershire 196 for 8.

LITTLE SHOE HAS BIG BANKROLL

Willie Will Hit 4,000 Winners in Record Time

By BILL MCCORMICK NEW YORK (NEA)—With only a few to go, William Lee Shoemaker was the only one around the track not absolutely sure of his chances of becoming the third man in turf history to ride 4,000 winners.

"I hope I make it," he said in all seriousness, evoking a snort from a valet in the jockeys' room at Aqueduct.

The watch fob version of Tyrone Power won't be 30 until Aug. 19 and he is in his 13th year in the saddle. Johnny Longden was 45 and had been riding 25 years when he chalked up his 4,000th winner in 1952. Eddie Arcaro was 42 and had 28 years of track experience when he made it. "A good jockey must have racing knowledge, good hands and guts," the 98-pounder who was five times national riding champion believes. "I spent three years around the stables doing everything before I started to ride. Maybe some part of riding skill is instinctive. I seemed to learn pretty fast."

Shoemaker, who is short-legged, has tremendously strong arms and hands, but he is as gentle as a spring zephyr on the reins.

"With those hands he could steer a horse with pieces of silk thread," said Eddie Arcaro, who is a great admirer and personal friend of the native of Fabens, Texas.

Shoemaker's family moved to California when Willie was 10. When he was in his middle teens, The Shoe decided he was going to be a little man and determined to ride.

He started hanging around the late Thomas W. Simon's Suzy Q Ranch near Hollywood Park, where he learned to sit a horse. He worked for Hurst as an exercise boy in 1947. Trainer George Reeves has been in the saddle. Last year was not a total loss, even though he did not ride 300. He was second with 274 victories and led the nation in purses won totaling $2,123,961. The Shoe has ridden in 10 Kentucky Derbies, winning on Tommy Lee, in 1959 and Swaps in '55. He made his only major for good on Gallant Man in 1957, when he pulled up briefly at the 16th pole.

In 1954, Shoemaker had the highest percentage of winners ever recorded—30 with 380 victories on 1,251 mounts. Going into this year, he had won more than 400 races for stakes of $100,000 or more.

HOW MANY CALORIES?

Still packing much too much suet, world light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore weighs pair of pears in general store at Sonoita, Ariz. Ancient Archie must pare down to 175 pounds by June 10, when he defends crown in New York against Italy's Giulio Rinaldi. (AP Wirephoto.)

Leave it to a carload of left-handers like Johnny Podres, Mike McCormick and Bill Henry to cause a three-way traffic jam that now has the National League race all snarled up.

These three southpaws have produced a real fender-bender up front where the league-leading San Francisco Giants, second-place Los Angeles Dodgers and third-place Cincinnati Reds find themselves bumper to bumper only 1½ games apart.

Let's take Podres first because he looks like the ring-leader with a 5-0 record. He pitched the Dodgers to their fourth straight victory Wednesday night with a five-hitter that beat Philadelphia Phillies, 6-0. Ron Fairly helped by driving in four runs with a homer and a triple.

Arnie's Students Close To Earning Full Marks

Hustling Vics Get Tie In Battle With Nanaimo

Nanaimo 12, Victoria 12
By ERNIE FEDORUK

The problems are bound to come up — no matter what — but it now seems that a little more time and a little more teaching may help cure some of Arnie Ferguson's major headaches.

Fergie's present desire is to win "our share of games" and to that he lends his services as the teacher of Victoria's Inter-City Lacrosse League class.

Time can't be bought, and that may eventually prove to be the only subject to hold back the class of '61 from graduating with respectable honors.

Results of test No. 3 were written Wednesday evening at Memorial Arena. The marks are improving and the instructor should be willing to accept the progress with quiet pride.

Vics' debate with Nanaimo ended in a 12-12 draw. The first point of the season for both teams is acceptable to Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Red McMillan, Nanaimo's headmaster.

More important than that first point, however, is the fact that improvement is noticeable. Mistakes are still prevalent, and they cost Victoria full marks Wednesday. The passing is better, goals are coming easier and, generally, the freshmen are showing signs of organization.

Still to attain a passing grade, however, is Victoria's defence.

Twice Mr. Ferguson's students were within seconds of passing and twice the defence failed to come up with the right answer.

The Wednesday debate was forced into overtime when Don Morelli outthrust three Victorians to tie the game with only about two minutes left in regulation time. More damaging, however, was the mistake that allowed sophomore Ed McDonald to snatch victory from the Vics with only 28 seconds remaining.

As the fates would have it, both Davies and Collett were outstanding for the Vics except for that brief moment.

The goal that tied it for the final time—McDonald's fourth of the night—must be attributed to a series of miscues. With the seconds ticking away, Jack Showers gained possession of the ball for Victoria.

The orders from the bench called for a change in play: ers. Indecision proved it to be a poor time.

Two Nanaimo players quartered Showers towards the boards. The Victoria player's mates, anxious to complete the change, failed to back him up properly. Unable to pass, Showers was checked by veteran Arnie Dugan who, in turn, relayed to McDonald.

DAVIES PRODUCED Still, McDonald appeared to be covered although directly in front of the Victoria goal. A momentary lapse was all that McDonald needed to get his shot away.

Davies, never a great scoring threat in bygone seasons, topped Victoria producers by scoring four goals and setting up a fifth. Pivot man on Ferguson's power plays, the veteran defenceman counted each of his goals while Victoria held the odd man advantage.

Tom Collett and rookie Reg Foster added three goals apiece while Bill Munroe and Showers supplied the others.

In addition to McDonald's four, Nanaimo got three goals from each of Don Ashbee and Don Morelli and one each from Larry Clarkson and Arnie Dugan.

MACKAY BOUNCED The Up-Island squad managed to count only three times while holding the man advantage on eight occasions.

Nanaimo was assessed 12 penalties, including a major, two misconducts and a game misconduct. The Vics made good on six odd-man plays.

Skip MacKay received a misconduct for tossing the ball—a bit too briskly—in the direction of referee Doug Bamforth. Protesting the call, again too briskly, only resulted in the game misconduct.

As for the officiating, a source of agitation and controversy in all corners of the league since the start of the season, it must be termed "good." Bamforth and Jack Northup both appeared to be in command throughout.

After all, I'm not very big. That's a matter of opinion, William Lee Shoemaker. A lot of trainers, owners, players and jockeys think you're a veritable giant on the track.

Another Big Field In Foursomes Race

The Victoria and District Golf Committee's coveted Rose Bowl is up for grabs Sunday.

And the usual bulky field—160 golfers this time—is ready to tee off in quest of the Centennial Foursomes trophy at Victoria Golf Club.

Inaugurated as a special event during B.C.'s centennial celebrations, the two-ball meet has mushroomed into one of the most popular Island team tournaments.

New names are certain to be engraved on the trophy with last year's winners—Lyle Barnes and Dick Munn of Cedar Hill—not on hand to defend.

The handicap event is based on half of the combined handicaps. Post entries will not be allowed.

The draw:

10-15 W. J. Clayton (GV) and W. Neilson (GV) 19 vs. W. Spaven (CH) and A. Wells (CH) 11.
 9-15 C. Abbott (U) and D. King (U) 9 vs. D. Farnthorpe (GV) and J. Meadley (GV) 9.

Bye Bye BOGIES

by BOB ROSBURG

Iron Accuracy

The big problem with irons is accuracy.

With them you have to be most accurate, not only as to line of flight, but as to distance. The first step toward achieving accuracy with irons is to employ a more upright, compact swing. Cut down a bit on body action. Let the hands and arms play a bigger part in the swing. The hip turn should decrease in proportion to the length of the shot.

If the line of flight is inaccurate, I have found that it usually indicates that the hands have lost control. The club face has not been at a precise right angle to the line of flight at the instant of impact.

The force of the club head hitting the ball will turn the face of an iron much more easily than it will the face of a wood. If the ball goes to the right, the face of the club has remained open. The right hand hasn't done its job.

Don't tighten up in your effort to maintain control with the hands. It can be done firmly, but without tenseness.

Mountie Manager To Watch Opener

A former major leaguer now playing his baseball chores from the manager's pulpit will add a touch of class to the 1961 Senior Amateur Baseball League season, which opens here Saturday.

Billy Hitchcock, Vancouver Mounties manager, accompanied by Ben Ford, Milwaukee Braves scout, will be present at Royal Athletic Park for the split doubleheader.

Hitchcock and Ford will answer fans' questions and take a good look at the material on the diamond.

Transport Workers play Courtenay in the first game at 2 p.m. The Island team comes right back at 6:15 for a game with Navy.

EIGHT-TEAM LEAGUE

Completing the eight-team league are Union Bay, Campbell River, RCAF Comox, Hotel Douglas and Wakeman Trimble. Weekend games will feature doubleheaders between Victoria and up-Island teams.

Mayor Bill Moore of Courtenay will lead his team into the city where an escort will meet them.

Handling the managerial reins locally are Art Worth.

Head Gets Chance With Boston

Hockey's trade winds blew furiously Wednesday. When the gale eased one player had moved up, some were ticked to move down and others were just moved around.

For Don Head, Western Hockey League all-star goalie with Portland Buckaroos, the news was all good. Head was traded to Boston Bruins for two players and the loan of a goal-keeper.

BETTER THAN CASH

The players are Jack Bionda, formerly on loan to Portland from Boston, another defenseman and a goalkeeper on loan. Portland general manager Harry Glickman said the deal was made because he learned Head was to be drafted.

"I was not interested in the $20,000 draft cash," said Glickman. If Head fails to make the Bruins (who have two goalies, Don Simmons and Bruce Gamble) he'll return to Portland and the WHL club will keep the players sent by Boston.

TURNER TO CHICAGO

In other trades: 1. Montreal Canadiens sent defenseman Bob Turner to Chicago Black Hawks in return for Fred Hiltz, top scorer with 45 goals last year in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

2. Boston Bruins swapped but light scorer, said he was surprised and disappointed.

General manager Lynn Patrick of Boston, said the deal was the first of several trades and purchases designed to elevate the Bruins from the National Hockey League basement.

O'Ree wasn't as happy. The slender Negro, a crowd pleaser

His chief disappointment, he said, was the fact that he would likely be farmed out by Montreal to Hull-Ottawa.

'Ideal' Budget
Oak Bay's Hope

By AB KENT

The millenium in municipal budgeting is within the grasp of Oak Bay planners — if adjustment of assessments next year doesn't upset the apple cart.

A local official said Oak Bay has a sound budget for 1961—$1,830,603 in expenditures achieved without an increase in the overall tax rate of 41 mills.

"We're getting to the point where we are doing all we should be doing," the official said, pointing out that taxes are still far below Victoria and Saanich.

INCREASE AVERTED

New projects are being carried out and the proper maintenance being given to them and old undertakings without drastic increases in taxation.

An anticipated one-mill increase was averted this week with settlement of the use of federal grant funds, leaving the mill rate unchanged from last year.

This resulted in a one-mill decrease in the school rate, bringing it to 18, and left the general rate at 23, which is one up from 1960.

Planners believe the present tax structure ought to carry municipal undertakings with little fluctuation, and still give ratepayers value for their money.

NO 'EXTRAS'

Unlike some other municipalities, all services are included in the general tax rate—there are no added amounts tacked onto tax bills for such things as garbage collection and street lighting.

The fly in the ointment is a new assessment formula to make its debut next year on provincial government instruction.

Average tax increase due to adjusted assessments this year may be $5 per home, depending on the amount of adjustment.

But because of the large number of long-established homes in Oak Bay, the average taxpayer could expect to pay much higher taxes next year when the new formula becomes effective.

Meanwhile, the 1961 budget generally remains much the same as last year's.

RAISE SLIGHT

Total expenditure stands only $132,580 above the 1960 total.

Fire department expenditure will be $3,000 higher at $126,379, while police and law enforcement costs have risen $8,551 to a total of $119,561.

Public works costs are up about $30,000 to provide mainly for street lighting improvements.

Total education costs this year will be $588,360, about $32,000 less than anticipated before the federal grant problem was solved.

Youth Dies After Chase, Kiss

LONDON, Ont. (CP).—A coroner said here Wednesday that the sudden death Tuesday night of a Dutch immigrant youth shortly after he chased and kissed a young girl was caused by fluid in the lungs and heart failure.

Dr. P. J. Sweeney said no decision has been made on whether an inquest will be held in the death of Boudewyn de Laage, 16, who fainted while being questioned in a police cruiser after he was chased.
"I think he must have also been very afraid," said Jacobus de Lange. "When he came to this country four years ago—he couldn't speak a word of English—I told him never to get into trouble with the police, that we were going to live here as good citizens. I think he remembered that."

City Police
Holding Line
On Salaries

City police commissioner William Hamilton Wednesday announced last year's contract with the police union has been renegotiated without a pay increase.

Police union this year sought parity with Vancouver police wage scales which are $19 a month higher for constables.

But they dropped the demand in the settlement which embodies "no changes of a substantial nature," Mr. Hamilton said.

Only wage negotiations involving the city still in dispute is a 5 per cent increase sought by the "outside" staff which is scheduled to go before a conciliation board later this month.

The 257-man union of public works, waterworks and parks department employees seeks a pay boost from $1.87 to $1.96½ an hour and three weeks vacation after five years' service instead of 10.

Pickers
Wanted

The National Employment Office, 1039 Johnson Street, is calling for persons to register for berry picking.

As the first of the strawberry crop will be ready for picking several weeks before the main body of students are released from school, employment officials are concerned in registering a sufficient number of adults and available students to go into the fields the early part of next month. Growers say the current crop of strawberries is expected to be good, if not better than last year, and picking may commence at the end of May, or early June.

'Old Wine In New Bottles'

Canada's New Party is like "putting old wine into new bottles after it has turned to vinegar," Liberal MP Paul Hellyer told an election rally in Colwood Community Hall Wednesday night.

He referred to the New Party as an attempt to present CCF policies in a "more popular guise," and said the return of a Liberal government to Ottawa was the only way of "putting Canada back on the rails."

Mr. Hellyer was addressing a meeting of more than 80 persons in support of David Groos, Liberal candidate in the May 29 Esquimalt-Saanich by-election.

PROMISES BROKEN

Of the Diefenbaker government Mr. Hellyer said:

"Their history is one of broken promises and mismanagement. In 1957 people said it was time for a change, and in my heart I agreed with them because the Liberal government had been in power so long."

"But four years can be a mighty long time, too, and I don't think Canada can stand much more of the calibre of administration we are getting now."

Mr. Hellyer urged British Columbians to "speed the return of responsible government in Ottawa" and added: "Capt. Groos is the type of man we need."

Capt. Groos thanked Esquimalt-Saanich Liberals for their "magnificent support" and said he was delighted with the progress of the campaign.

"I stand foursquare behind the Liberal Party's platform," he declared. "We have a passionate desire to get Canada growing and expanding again and we have a long-range plan for combatting unemployment by increasing our trade with other countries."

NUCLEAR SUBS?

The candidate said there is every indication Canada will be building more submarines in the near future and some of these should be built in Victoria and Esquimalt.

"But we must move with the times and I think we should start building nuclear submarines."

Earlier, at a press conference, Mr. Hellyer said Canada's reported plan for construction of six submarines would be a waste of public money.

"If we are going into the submarine business, we might as well build something that will be of use to us," he declared.

Mr. Hellyer refused to say whether he referred to the nuclear submarine.

QUESTION PERIOD RUNS OVERTIME

'Blue Ruin Boys' Score by PCs

Veterans Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill and Conservative candidate George Chatterton Wednesday night hit out at "blue ruin boys" for criticizing the federal government.

But though they drew a crowd of more than 200 to Sanscha Hall at Sidney for their Esquimalt-Saanich campaign meeting, there were rumblings of discontent among the audience.

The meeting didn't come to life until a question period which drew criticisms from the crowd on veterans' pensions, lack of a Canadian merchant marine, high interest rates and tight money and the Columbia River power scheme. Questions were cut off after 20 minutes and the audience was asked to write down other queries and leave them for Mr. Chatterton.

WRONG IMPRESSION

Mr. Churchill said that contrary to remarks by opposing politicians Canada's economy is improving. But the impression given abroad was one of discontent.

"This is no time for the blue ruin boys," he said.

"It has its effect if your country is being cried down by our own citizens."

Press statements overseas were not true. "Canada is not in a bad state," he said.

Mr. Churchill said Canada's export trade has increased "every year we've been in office." The recently concluded wheat deal with Communist China, averting the threatened national rail strike, and improving the lot of veterans were three other Conservative accomplishments he cited.

Mr. Chatterton said he was "disgusted" by Saskatchewan's Premier Tommy Douglas' attack on the U.S. here last week in which he said intervention in Cuba was comparable to Russian intervention in Hungary.

"If the U.S. wanted to take over Cuba it could do it in a day," said Mr. Chatterton. "The statements made by Premier Douglas were irresponsible and against the best interests of this country."

Mr. Chatterton said there had also been misconceptions about Canada acquiring nuclear weapons. Federal ministers were "dedicated to peace," but Canada must "be prepared" until an effective world disarmament agreement is reached.

CANNOT HIDE

The Canadian accent should be on defence not offence. "Any government that acts in any other manner would be irresponsible like the ostrich hiding its head in the sand."

Mr. Chatterton also replied

Angola Probe Soon

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Frederick Boland of Ireland, president of the United Nations General Assembly, told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin Wednesday that a five-nation UN committee on inquiry on Angola would be formed within the next few days.

to Liberal predictions that the Conservatives would try to "buy" votes in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"If I can get the government to do things which I think are in the interest of the people—a new fishermen's wharf here, better runways, employment for the men at Fairley Aviation—if this is buying people, I wish they would do more buying."

In answer to a questioner who said there had been "no word and no action" on petitions to Ottawa for better long-service veterans' pensions, Mr. Churchill said he was "very sympathetic" and the matter would receive study.

Failure to reorganize the merchant marine under a Canadian flag he said has caused "concern" but "no-one has yet come up with a solution."

On high interest rates: "Interest rates are not set by the government but are determined by fluctuations in business and in trade."

YUGOSLAV COURT JAILS RC PRIEST

BELGRADE (AP)—A Yugoslav court has sentenced a Roman Catholic priest to 12 years in prison on a charge of inspiring the slaying of a Communist party official, the newspaper Politika reported today.

Rev. Dominik Ramaj, a priest in the village of Gronje Stubbe, was accused in the death of David Ramaj, party secretary in the village.

The newspaper said the priest inspired the killings in sermons criticizing the Communist party.

Bands Galore Will Feature May 22 Parade

Victoria Day opening procession is shaping into a "parade of bands" besides a stellar array of new acts from Greater Victoria and out-of-town.

The flashy, big air force band from 19 Wing active and reserve RCAF units in Vancouver will accompany an honor guard marching in the May 22 parade.

Men will be billeted at HMCS Naden, thereby avoiding one of the celebrations committee's biggest problems—accommodating some 450 out-of-town youngsters who will take part in the May 20-22 events.

VISITING UNITS

Among other outside units coming here are the Bellingham band and drill team, the Ballard, Wash., girls' drill team and Vernon Girls' Trumpet Band.

Making its first appearance in the annual parade after a 10-year absence will be band and unit of University School 170 Cadet Corps (C. Scot. R.).

There is a new section for civic floats in which Saanich, Esquimalt and Langford will be represented.

FIRE LADDIES

Oak Bay and Saanich fire departments have planned floats.

So far the comic section has a number of promising entries including a Sidney-entered Model T bride and groom pageant, a horseback clown and a pair of Keystone policemen driving go-karts.

Ethnic groups, too, are interested in the parade: There are entries from the Polish Youth Club, a junior section of the White Eagle Association, and Sons of Norway in their colorful national costumes.

One of the parade highlights will be vintage automobiles from Victoria and Vancouver sections of the Vintage Car Club of B.C.

60 ANCIENT CARS

About 60 of the venerable vehicles will take part, including a display at the Legislature from 6-7 p.m. Sunday, May 21.

Judging of parade entries will be from a stand at the Odeon Theatre on the Yates Street section of the route.

May Queen crowning will be held in front of the Legislature on Sunday.

Among the events carried on in conjunction with the celebrations is the 31st Open Horse Show at Victoria Riding Academy, Cedar Hill Cross-road, at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. May 22.

The show's junior section takes place Saturday, May 20, at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., also at the academy.

BILLETS NEEDED

Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association holds its speed boat regatta on Elk Lake at 1 p.m. Sunday, May 21.

There are motorcycle and car races, band concerts, midway shows and "New Moon" production by Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Society.

Anyone having billets to spare for girls is asked to call celebrations secretary Mrs. Ethel Bishop at EV 2-3912.

ANSWER TO CLUSTER LIGHTS?

Luminous Plant a Mystery

BOMBAY (CP)—The village of Balichapori in Assam state in northeast India has become a big attraction for scientists and the superstitious alike. They are all flocking there to see a mysterious "luminous plant."

Soon after dusk the nine-foot-high plant is said to glow magnificently.

The chief minister of Assam and several top state officials have visited Balichapori and confessed to a feeling of "sheer wonder." The chief minister took back samples of the leaves in two bottles.

The National Physical Laboratory in New Delhi, one of the country's leading scientific institutions, has started investigating the mystery.

Preliminary studies by Assam's scientists suggest the luminosity may be due to certain chemicals capable of emitting light at night.

There is also speculation in the press that radioactive contamination may have something to do with the luminosity. One theory advanced is that the luminous plant indicates rich oil-bearing strata beneath. Assam is one of the few areas in the country where oil-drilling operations have met with sizable success.

As far as the villages of the region are concerned the light-giving plant is just the work of some mysterious spirits. At night the peasants sound trumpets and beat drums to pacify the spirits.

So great has been the rush of visitors for Balichapori that the authorities have had to arrange extra buses. Police guards have cordoned off the garden and the town is enjoying a business boom.

"We hope that the mystery lingers on," confessed the village head-man. "It has meant a new life for so many here."

Although porcupines move slowly as a rule, they can run as fast as a man over short distances.

Building Booms

PRINCE GEORGE — Value of new construction started here during the first three months of 1961 is double the figure for the same period last year. Permits have been issued for buildings worth $1,025,000 compared with $500,000 in 1960. Building starts include 49 new homes.

1/2 AWAKE Nights 1/2 ASLEEP Days..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys slow down wastes and excess acids stay in the system. Disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you feel dull in the daytime—use Dadd's Kidney Pills. Then you feel better—rest better—work better. You can depend on Dadd's Kidney Pills.

Renfrew Needs Breakwater

The federal government should build a breakwater at Port Renfrew as early as possible, George Hahn, Social Credit candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election, told a meeting at Port Renfrew Wednesday night.

"The breakwater is needed for the protection of fishermen seeking shelter in Port Renfrew," he said. "They have no such protection now."

Mr. Hahn said the federal government is responsible for the development of industry at Port Renfrew. The "breakwater would assist development of the Noranda Mine and enable it to ship concentrates to Japan."

Building of the breakwater, with wharfage facilities, and the construction of a road from Noranda Mines to the wharf would give immediate employment to the people of Port Renfrew and Vancouver Island.

"Operation of the mine would employ about 75 men on a year-round basis," Mr. Hahn said.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston spoke in support of Mr. Hahn.

$14.38 FLIGHT PAY FOR U.S. ASTRONAUT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cmdr. Alan Shepard earned an extra $14.38 for riding a rocket into space last Friday.

Here's how the navy explained this Wednesday:

As a commander on flying duty, Shepard is entitled to an extra $230 a month. He has to fly four hours a month for it.

His space voyage—302 miles down the Atlantic from Cape Canaveral, Fla.—took 15 minutes. Thus, he earned 1-16th of his flight pay for May, or $14.38.

Shepard gets no special compensation for serving as an astronaut. In a sense, he flew so fast Friday it cost him money.

Tories Desperate Hamilton Charges

The federal government is "buying" votes in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election with all kinds of extravagant promises, New Party candidate Glen Hamilton told a meeting in Metchosin Community Hall Thursday night.

"If we could only keep the by-election going continually, this would be a prosperous area," he joked.

"In the bad old days politicians used to buy our votes with $5 bills. This government goes beyond such penny-ante stuff—they have thrown everything into the pot but the Bank of Canada in a desperate bid to win this election."

Mr. Hamilton said the government should redeem the promises it made in 1957 before offering more election bait.

"Mr. Diefenbaker said as long as he was prime minister no Canadian would suffer from unemployment. Let him keep that promise before all others."

The royal commission, appointed last October, is inquiring into the activities of the Union Nationale government

Tumor Growth Slowed

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia cancer specialist Nikolai Blokhin said Wednesday Soviet scientists have achieved 95 per cent success in treating skin cancer. According to the Soviet news agency Tass, he said they had discovered chemical means to slow down the development of malignant tumors, though he did not expect a sensational discovery of a universal cure for all cancers.

FERRY CHIEF'S VIEW

Canadians Abroad Enjoy High Esteem

Canadians enjoy a reputation abroad which they never earned in this generation, B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous said Wednesday.

He spoke briefly to Victoria Chinatown Lions Club on the subject, "Opportunities and Responsibility of Citizenship."

The "dollar diplomacy" practiced abroad by North Americans is generally undermining the respect which many countries have felt for Canada, he warned.

Canadians today are too eager to ask for social legislation, a squandering of their birthright, he said.

"We must return to a Canada of principles—not dollars. We must fight for our freedoms, not give them away inch by inch by asking for more and more social legislation."

Mr. Aldous said he writhed with shame for Canadians who consider newcomers "darned foreigners."

The freedoms upon which Canada was built and a desire to become Canadians are the things which attract people from other countries to this one, he said.

Old Style AGE

slower brewing is an Old Style tradition

Old Style is calmly brewed, with no concern for time. Faithful to our original recipe, carefully selected barley, hops and yeast are blended, brewed and, finally, put away to mature slowly in quiet ageing cellars. Brewed in this traditionally unhurried manner, Old Style's brilliant colour, fine flavour, and mellow taste mature naturally. Slower brewing is the reason so many people prefer Old Style.

CALCUTTA (UPI) — A spreading cholera outbreak of near-epidemic proportions has taken 123 lives here in the past three weeks, health authorities said today.

$3,793 'for Conscience'

QUEBEC (CP) — Honore Pelletier, 55-year-old farmer from St. Paome, Que., said Wednesday he was paid $3,793 for writing a statement saying he was switching political allegiance during last summer's provincial election campaign.

He told a royal commission inquiry into the former Union Nationale administration he negotiated the deal to find out whether it was really true the party "bought off consciences."

Mr. Pelletier said the switch was from the Liberal party to the Union Nationale administration. Later, he said, he called on the Quebec Liberal organization in Quebec City and told them the full story.

Earlier, Hubert Ducharme, 46-year-old son of Romulus Ducharme (UN—Laviolette) told the commission he operated two firms which sold equipment to the provincial government between 1955 and 1960 and collected sales commissions.

Mr. Ducharme said he could not remember how much his firms collected in commissions or how much equipment was sold. The commission is to question the firms' accountant soon for details.

The royal commission, appointed last October, is inquiring into the activities of the Union Nationale government between July 1, 1955, and July 1, 1960—the last five years of a 16-year administration. Present sittings of the commission have been adjourned until next Tuesday.

IS GOV'T INVOLVED?

Bonner Studying Blow at Bill 42

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said his department is now studying a court challenge to new labor laws by a Vancouver union, and will soon decide if the government will be represented during the case.

"The only possible involvement would be regarding constitutional implications," he said.

Lawyers acting for the Vancouver local of the Oil-Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union Wednesday served Mr. Bonner's department with a statement of claim filed in Supreme Court against Imperial Oil Ltd.

Their claim says B.C.'s new labor laws banning use of union dues for politics are ultra vires and violate the Canadian Bill of Rights.

"We have not yet had a chance to analyze the position to see how, if at all, the government is involved," said Mr. Bonner.

Who's Your Choice?

GEORGINA NOELS

The new "Miss Victoria" will be chosen May 20, the last day of Victoria Joyce fair. To enable readers to make their own choice, the Times is presenting one of the 10 finalists daily. Here is the next pair:

By HAL JONES

One of the youngest hopefuls is Nina Holden, 845 Selkirk, a 17-year-old student at Victoria High School.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, she came to Canada with her parents in 1950 and lived in Ontario for eight years before moving to Victoria.

With a bonnie Scots heritage, Nina enjoys life with a capital "L" taking part in numerous school activities.

She is a fanatical swimmer but ruefully recalls the day she lost her relay team a race without anybody swimming a stroke. "A strap on my swim suit snapped," she explained.

She wants to be a stenographer. Nina will appear before the judges next Friday in the talent part of the contest. She will sing.

Also singing for the judges—this time on Wednesday—will be Georgina Noels.

Georgina hails from Saskatchewan, coming here first for a year in 1948 and then permanently in 1951. She lives with her parents and four younger sisters—at 1791 Keith Place.

NINA HOLDEN with 'budgie' friend.

A graduate of Mount Douglas High School she works as a stenographer. Spare time activities include watching hockey and playing basketball.

Don't be fooled by Georgina's "outdoor look." She likes walks but that's as far as it goes. Camping and such things are definitely out.

"I hate bugs," she says.

Esquimalt-Bound Sub Formally Taken Over

WHAT TO DO?

Old Queen's Portrait A Problem

An heirloom is causing Sooke School Board no end of worry.

It is a picture of Queen Victoria measuring six by five feet, and in a massive gilt frame. At present it is hanging in the original Metchoshin School, now being used as a Scout Hall, and deterioration is continuous.

Because of its history, however, the board is reluctant to dispose of it, and through its regular newsletter has asked for suggestions regarding restoration and housing of the picture.

The person responsible for the picture being in the old school is Mrs. Anne Trotter, 1506 McRae.

WON WITH ESSAY

In 1899, when she was 12 years old and a student at the school, she won for herself, in a district-wide essay and speaking competition, a book entitled "Life of Napoleon."

But for the school she won the imposing picture of Queen Victoria, which was donated and presented by W. H. Hayward, Sooke MLA and at that time Speaker of the House.

Rocky Point School won the picture the following year, but because of lack of space it remained at Metchoshin. When Mr. Hayward died the competition was discontinued.

"The years have taken their toll of the ancient prize," the board wrote. "A few pot shots by disrespectful small fry, gradual disintegration of the frame, plus the grime of years, now mar its original imposing appearance."

Mrs. Trotter and her family recently inspected the picture at the Scout Hall. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Duke of Albert Head.

HMCS Grilse Friendship Symbol

Canadian Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny said today that "the need for a naval force capable of ensuring the freedom of the seas is greater than it has ever been before."

He was speaking at Groton, Connecticut, at a ceremony when he formally accepted for Canada the former U.S. submarine Burfish which was christened HMCS Grilse by Mrs. Sevigny. Grilse will be stationed at Esquimalt and is due here in mid-July.

Mr. Sevigny said, "With the Soviet and satellite navies gaining in strength and destructive potential, the threat to the security of the seas has assumed greater and more menacing proportions."

Mr. Sevigny said Canada's navy has undertaken within NATO "to specialize in anti-submarine warfare."

Grilse will help Canadian ships and aircraft "sharpen their ability to find, track and sink submarines."

FRIENDSHIP PROVED

Mr. Sevigny said the ceremony was "one of the more visible demonstrations" of the friendship existing between Canada and the U.S.

"Nowhere has this goodwill and co-operative effort been more apparent than in the association between the navies of the United States and Canada."

Grilse, on loan to Canada for five years, is now manned by a 70-man crew from Esquimalt, commanded by Lieut.-Cmdr. Edmund G. Gigg. They have been training at the U.S. base since late January.

Grilse is the first submarine since the German U-190 to become part of the RCN fleet. That was in 1945.

The navy is hoping that the government will soon decide to have submarines built in Canada. It says it could use at least 12 to exercise the destroyer fleet.

The RCN's first submarines were the CC1 and CC2, purchased on the authority of the premier of British Columbia when this province, at the outset of the First World War, was in a state of alarm.

BOUGHT SUBS

The two boats were built in Seattle, Wash., for the Chilean Navy. Chile got behind in the payments and the builders peddled them at a higher price. The submarines were delivered at a sea rendezvous where a $1,150,000 Province of British Columbia cheque was turned over on the spot as full payment.

So secret was this operation that the two vessels were nearly fired on by shore batteries when they entered harbor at Esquimalt.

The CC1 and CC2 patrolled the West Coast for three years and their well-advertised presence may have deterred the Germans from raiding B.C. waters.

During the First World War, 24 submarines were built in Canada for Britain, Italy and Russia. Ten more were built in the U.S. for Britain, and after the war two of them, the CH-14 and CH-15, were given to Canada.

Retrenchment followed the war and the RCN had to give up these two submarines in 1922.

The navy didn't get another submarine until after the defeat of Nazi Germany in 1945. Two enemy subs, the U-889 and U-190, surrendered to Canadian ships at sea.

The Grilse is the first RCN sub since then. However, the sixth submarine squadron of the Royal Navy has been based on Halifax since 1954 with two or three boats to exercise the Canadian fleet.

These submarines are partly manned by Canadians but remain part of the RN.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know when, where and from what Al Capone died. J.C.

A. Gangster Alphonse "Scarface" Al Capone died of paresis (syphilis) in Miami, Fla., Jan. 1947, aged 48.

Q. Would you kindly tell me the approximate value of a small sapphire compared to a diamond of similar size? A.C.

A. A fine quality sapphire is about the same price as a diamond.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1961—PAGE 17

HERE AND THERE . . . With NORMAN CRIBBENS

A crazy afternoon . . .

From a tourist luncheon at the Empress Hotel, I dashed around to Silver Threads to play them a few of my oldest records—those of Caruso, Gracie Fields, Paul Whiteman and the Westminster Abbey Choir.

Then back to the Empress to interview Liberal MP Paul Hellyer in one of the downstairs reception rooms . . . Blundered into a life insurance meeting by mistake and was greeted enthusiastically as Mr. So-and-So from Toronto.

Found Mr. Hellyer next door with radio and TV men. He said the national Liberal Party had taken on a "new lease of life," but the effect was spoiled by a life insurance man the other side of the wall. In loud clear tones he was heard to say:

"This is what happens after death . . ."

Not surprised so many Times readers objected to that description of George Bernard Shaw in the advertisement announcing the new movie The Millionaire.

Over the shapely outline of Sophia Loren in black undies were the words:

"From the wicked worldly George Bernard Shaw."

Really!

The Silver Threads were appreciative of a record made by Caruso way back in 1918—the only song he ever sang in English.

This was George Cohan's composition Over There and Caruso sang it in aid of the U.S. War-Bond campaign.

Another oldie which came in for lots of laughter was the one-man opera performed years ago by blind pianist Alec Templeton.

He sang all the parts—tenor, bass, baritone, soprano and contralto—and still managed to save enough breath for a hilarious impersonation of the radio commentator.

Wanted—A Cockney comedian.

Jerry Gosley needs one for the 1961 edition of his summer Smile Show opening at the Langham Court Theatre July 19. The rest of the caste is complete, with Jerry and Margaret Thomson again taking the lead roles.

The first night in aid of the Salvation Army's Mattson Sunset Lodge will be attended by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes.

Forty-eight residents of Long Beach, California, have booked seats for the second night.

IT'S OFF TO BRITAIN

This summer for air cadet Bryan Forrest, 17-year-old student at Mt. Douglas High School who is one of more than 500 top Canadian air cadets selected for special training awards this summer. They include pilot and leadership courses as well as the good-will exchange trips. They were selected from among some 25,000 cadets in 331 squadrons across the country. Of the 33 cadets who will visit Britain, eight also will travel in Norway, Sweden, Holland and Denmark.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Residences, Church for Gordon Head

A new church and residential development for the Gordon Head area on an 11.74-acre tract acquired by St. Chad's Anglican Church was announced today by Rev. H. Gordon Walker, St. Chad's rector.

Still in the initial planning stages, the project is seen as providing a two-acre site on the highest ground in the area for a strikingly modern church, with the balance of the property being subdivided into about 25 large lots.

The property, on the east side of Shelbourne Street north of Torquay Drive, near Mt. Douglas Park, was acquired for $16,000 and the deal was handled for the church by R. H. Smith of Morey and Johnstone Ltd.

Mr. Walker said that the contemplated church building would seat between 300 and 400 people and would be built at an estimated cost of $150,000.

FAMILY AREA

"We want it to be a real landmark," he said, "and we expect to have something imaginative in design, something that will express the needs of the times. It will be a structure which directs people toward God and also says to them, 'He is here.'"

The subdivision, he said, would be a "really outstanding family area" with large lots and playground area.

St. Chad's will open a fund-raising drive this fall which is expected to carry on over the next three years. By spring the church hopes to engage an architect to design the church and shortly after, perhaps with a loan from the diocese, to commence building.

Subdivision of the residential area is expected to take place this year and the profits from this will go to the church building fund.

B.C. Demands Specific Plan For Garibaldi

The B.C. government does not want to turn over Garibaldi Park to the federal government "unless it comes forward with a specific plan of development," Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said here today.

Mr. Westwood was commenting on a statement in the Ottawa House of Commons by Resources Minister Dinsdale that the federal government has received "no reply" to its offer of two years ago to take over Garibaldi Park.

Mr. Dinsdale said established policy demands that the provincial government make the approach to have the land designated as a national park, and must provide the land "free of all encumbrances."

"That is not good enough," Mr. Westwood said. "We are developing the park ourselves as rapidly as money will permit because we realize it is a tremendous asset to the people of the lower mainland."

"Unless the federal government comes forward with a specific plan, we don't feel we should hand over Garibaldi Park."

Mr. Dinsdale said established policy demands that the provincial government make the approach to have the land designated as a national park, and must provide the land "free of all encumbrances."

"That is not good enough," Mr. Westwood said. "We are developing the park ourselves as rapidly as money will permit because we realize it is a tremendous asset to the people of the lower mainland."

'Green Thumb' Experts Will Want These Plants

By PENNY SAVER

If you haven't already started work on your flower beds one look at the healthy plants I've seen this week will have you planning a busy gardening weekend.

Those who love glorious blue tones will be interested in lupin plants selling at 65 cents each and Pacific hybrid delphiniums that range from pale pink to deep royal blue. Latter are priced at 35 cents each.

For a blaze of color use petunias. These come in a variety of shades and sell at either 65 cents or 75 cents a dozen. Nostalgic memories of English gardens are revived when you have sturdy Sweet Williams. These sell at 35 cents each.

Soft, velvety faces of pansies are hard to resist and healthy plants will produce flowers for cutting for many weeks. Large plants of Swiss giant variety, all grown from originator seed, are selling at 50 cents for three plants.

Have you thought of having some hanging flower baskets? Ones I've seen are already planted with colorful arrangements of fuchsias in well-known varieties. Baskets are of white plastic. Owner of store explained that white is considered best because it is sun-resistant and so helps to keep roots cool. Whether you use these as a hanging basket or stand them in a corner of your porch or patio, they'll give you beauty through the summer months.

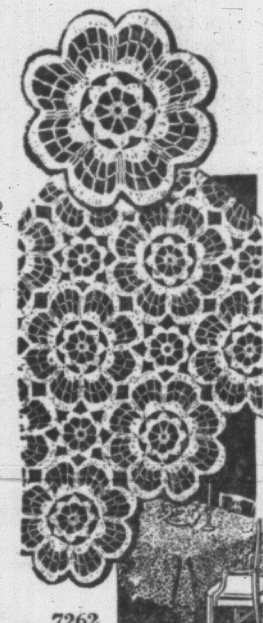

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

GINGER-PEACHY
FRUIT MOLD

One 1-lb. 1-oz. can fruit cocktail, 1 to 2 teaspoons finely-chopped candied ginger, 1 (3-oz.) package peach-flavored gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, dash salt, 1 medium-sized banana, sliced.

Drain fruit cocktail, reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 cup. Add ginger and bring to boiling. Pour over gelatin and stir to dissolve; add 1 cup cold water, lemon juice, and salt. Chill until partially set. Fold in fruit cocktail and banana; turn into 4-cup mold and chill firm. Unmold to serve. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

You can paint over wallpaper with latex paint—if it isn't dirty or peeling and has not a raised flock.

Jacqueline Kennedy's Interests In Art and Horses Remembered

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two things Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy likes best—art and horses—are on the schedule for her trip to Canada with President John Kennedy.

The Kennedys' 24-day visit to Ottawa next week is the forerunner of a similar trip to Paris later in the month.

The Canadian trip is typical of state visits and includes a presidential address to both Houses of Parliament. For much of it, including two formal state dinners and a reception, both the president and Mrs. Kennedy will follow the same schedule.

Mrs. Kennedy will take a brief look, on her own, at Canada's National Gallery and watch a drill by the RCMP.

VISIT TIMELY

Canadian spokesmen here note that the timing of the Kennedy's trip will give them a chance to see one of the spectacular sights of Ottawa—more than 1,000,000 tulips in bloom.

The president and his wife are due in Ottawa by plane late next Tuesday afternoon. They will stay at Rideau Hall, residence of Governor-General Vanier.

Their first official appearance will be at Rideau Hall where both the president and Mrs. Kennedy will plant a commemorative tree on the grounds.

Tuesday evening they will be guests of honor at a formal, white tie state dinner for 40 or 50 at Government House, followed by a state reception to which about 400 have been invited.

Program arranged for visit of United States President Kennedy to Ottawa does not forget the particular interests of Mrs. Kennedy.

The next morning, while Kennedy goes to the National War Memorial and engages in a discussion with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Mrs. Kennedy will embark on her own schedule.

It calls for just 30 minutes in the National Gallery. From there, she goes to the RCMP barracks. A horsewoman herself and a devotee of horse shows, Mrs. Kennedy will view a half-hour colorful riding drill of the Mounties.

She rejoins the president for luncheon at the prime minister's home and to watch Kennedy deliver his address in the Commons.

Winding up the official visit Wednesday night is the customary return dinner for their Canadian hosts at the U.S. Embassy.

Victoria Man Marries Up-Island

A wedding of interest in Victoria took place in Duncan, B.C., when a young man, William Thomas Landy, 21, of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Thorarinson of Duncan, and Mr. and Mrs. William Landy, of Victoria.

Mauve iris, yellow daisies and apple blossoms decorated the church for the ceremony at which Rev. R. E. Knipe officiated.

Organist was Mrs. N. Carter and Mrs. N. Duckworth sang "O Promise Me." Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white tulle with sleeves ending in lily points and pastel-toned sequins and white pearls highlighting the lace yolk. The hooped skirt featured a gathered bustle, decorated with a bow and lace applique. Illusion net veil in three-quarter length misted from a headpiece of pearls and sequins. Deep red roses and stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet.

Cousin of the bride, Miss Kristin Minnell, North Surrey, B.C., was maid of honor in a sky blue nylon organza gown in ballerina length. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and roses. Tiny flower girls, Beverly and Sharon Glenn, wore yellow nylon organza frocks and carried baskets of yellow chrysanthemums trimmed with blue ribbons. Their white brimmed hats were decorated with yellow and blue flowers.

Cliff Madill, Victoria, was best man and ushering were Mel Price, Victoria, and the bride's brother, Douglas Thorarinson.

Ken Lineham, Victoria, proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Moose Home. A three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table was made and given to the principals by Mrs. Ted Hasse, Innisfail, Alta. Mauve iris, yellow daisies, primroses and apple blossoms decorated the rooms.

Leaving for a honeymoon at Qualicum Beach the bride donned a pale green wool sheath dress and toning jacket with brown accessories. Corset was of Talsman roses. The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

More Education Needed To Take Rightful Place

TORONTO (CP)—The director of the women's bureau of the department of labor said Tuesday women of the future need more education to be able to take their place in all professions or sciences.

Marion Royce told the 75th annual meeting of the Toronto diocesan board Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary they must realize their contract with life includes being both homemaker and mother, and helping to grapple with the problems of society.

Miss Royce said three-quarters of professional women are either teachers or nurses. This she said is too concentrated.

Better education might be the answer.

Of Canada's 1,600,000 employed women, Miss Royce said, 46 per cent are married women employed at unskilled service trades, 10 per cent are widows or other women alone and, only 44 per cent are single.

The trend toward married women and young mothers turning to unskilled service occupations could be largely a result of unemployment.

Nylon Net and Lace Gown Chosen By Bride, Margaret Ruth Graham

Floor-length white nylon net and lace gown over satin was worn by Margaret Ruth Graham for her wedding to William Kenneth Henson. The Chantilly lace basque bodice had a scalloped Sabrina neckline sparkling with iridescent sequins and the full hooped skirt, appliqued with sequins, billowed from a dropped waistline. Her bouquet was pink roses and white feathered carnations.

Vows were exchanged in Centennial United Church with Dr. S. J. Parsons officiating. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. David W. Graham, 1015 Tolmie Avenue and Mr. and Mrs. William Henson, Thorpe Place.

Mr. Graham gave his daughter in marriage. Bill Alexander was soloist.

Six senior attendants were Miss Lyn Nelson, maid of honor; Mrs. Lorena Graham, bridesmatron; Misses Grace Graham, Sheila Brown, Betty Warren and Sharon Walker, bridesmaids. They wore gowns of green, yellow and blue, taffeta brocade with sashes in deeper tones tied in wide bows at back, and they carried colonial bouquets of feathered carnations en tone.

Irene Henson, as flower girl, wore a floral nylon over pink taffeta frock and carried a basket of feathered carnations.

Norman Henson was best man, and ushering guests to their seats were Garth Graham, Allen Graham, David Green, Norman Graham and Bob Henson.

Reception was held in White Eagle Hall, which was decorated with lilac, tulips and bleeding hearts. Behind bridal party were placed candelabra standards holding 14 tall candles. A three-tier wedding cake was cut and toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Norman Eddison.

Honeymoon was spent in the western United States; the bride travelling in a boucle suit in vanilla cream tone, the box jacket trimmed with blue fox collar. Her hat was of blue flowers, her accessories en tone with her suit and her corsage was of peach-toned roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas J. Miller, 1498 Ocean View Road, Victoria, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Arlene Elizabeth, to Mr. Henry Maxwell (Terry) Smith, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith, 2296 Valleyview Drive, Kamloops, B.C. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 3 at 7:30 p.m., in St. Aidan's Church, with Rev. J. Avery officiating.

WHY GROW OLD?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Bike Riding Is Fun And Profitable, Too

Bicycle riding, like swimming, is profitable and enjoyable at every age. Bicycle riding and swimming are similar in other ways too. Both can be as mild or as strenuous as you wish. For this reason they often are allowed when more strenuous exercise is prohibited because of physical condition.

Each of these sports is valuable in gaining or losing weight, and in normalizing the figure. They build gentle curves, relax, and stimulate appetite for the underweight, and burn up calories and help banish the pads of fat for overweight.

Cycling firms the calves, hips and abdomen. The grip on the handlebars helps firm the arms, and if you ride as you should, with a flat back, this exercise will improve your posture.

Walking and hiking also provide wonderful exercise. However, bicycling has the advantage. Because of the swift movement possible on a two-wheeler, as compared to walking, boredom is avoided by rapid changes of scenery.

If you live in the heart of the city and is isn't practical to bicycle from your home to the country, you can transport your bike in your car. One of the lighter weight bikes would be better for this, of course.

At any rate, it's certainly worth the effort. You might pack a lunch and spend the day in the country.

When my husband and I spent a year in England, we spent some of our spare time cycling. It was such fun to take lunch with us and ride over the English countryside.

With the medical profession emphasizing the importance of exercise for everyone, it behooves us all to discover pleasant ways in which to get our daily quota. Whenever you can add lovely scenery and fresh air and sunshine to exercise, you receive an extra bonus. Don't forget bicycle riding!

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Yes, You Can Make It Sleeveless

"Dear Eunice Farmer, "Can a dress be made sleeveless by omitting the sleeves? Also, is there a special way of cutting the sleeveless arms to look like Jackie Kennedy's, hers has that finished look in winter and summer? I certainly will appreciate your help." Mrs. S. S.

Dear Mrs. S. S.: Any dress may be made sleeveless if you have made a slight alteration.

Add 1/2" more fabric to the dress or blouse at the underarm and taper to nothing at the notch in front and back of the armhole.

The "finished look" you are referring to, is obtained by cutting a facing for the armhole instead of binding it or hemming by hand. Use the armhole itself as a guide for cutting the facing, making a separate facing for the back and front. The facing should be about 3" wide when cut. After stitching the facing to the armhole, be sure to clip the seam allowance to the stitching line so the facing will lay flat and smooth next to the garment.

Please send all suggestions and questions to Sew Simple in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Keep Your Head in the Clouds!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that can't be cured by diet, exercise or prayer. I am a six-foot three-inch tall woman!

Almost every miserable day of my life, idiotic people make me feel like a creature from another planet. No matter where I go I am gawked at, and talked about as though I were a freak.

Friends tell me to have a sense of humor about the whole thing but, believe me, this is not so easily laughed off. I am just fed up. How can I live with a situation like this, short of cutting my legs off?

MISS ESB

DEAR MISS: Walk tall and keep your chin up. Be grateful for your six feet, three inches of healthy, normally functioning body. There are millions of people who would swap places with you tomorrow. Prayer might be the answer. Get on your knees and thank the good Lord for your blessings.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a girl for over a year. I am very much in love with her and have been thinking about asking her to marry me. We are both 23. During my childhood my parents had me treated for an emotional disorder. I see no point in mentioning this to my girl friend. My roommate says she thinks it is important for the girl to know this before we are married. Do you agree?

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT SURE: Yes, Tell her.

DEAR ABBY: When I married Betty she knew how much money I earned but said, "Don't worry, we will manage." Well, here is how she has been "managing":

When she wants some new clothes or something for our apartment that she knows I can't afford to buy, she gets

"TEMPUS FUGIT"

It is a little more than twenty-five years since we established on Store Street, and although the nature of our business has changed slightly, our basic reasons for choosing our location remain. We are in a low overhead and low rental district, and if you add to these two ingredients a good wage scale, the end product is a happy staff and low prices on our merchandise.

There are many other factors of course, such as buying during manufacturers' "off seasons," buying of "distress" merchandise, bulk buying, and again, just plain common sense buying.

We are living in a competitive age, and as the buying value of your dollar decreases, it becomes more important that you "shop around" to make sure you are getting the best value for your dollar. That's all we ask. Compare the other "SPECIALS" with our regular prices and quality, then spend your money where you get the best buy. We'll be seeing you!

Circular Bus-Ferry Tour Gets Successful Trial Run

Leading Vancouver businessmen visited Nanaimo and Victoria Wednesday on a circular bus tour, organized by Black Ball Ferries.

It will be offered to the public later as the Tri-City Tour.

Leaving Vancouver by bus at 8 a.m., the 50 guests sailed from Tsawwassen in the B.C.

government ferry at 9 a.m., landed at Swartz Bay at 10.40 and were received at the Empress Hotel at 11.30.

After being entertained at lunch, they were driven to Nanaimo to catch the Black Ball ferry to Vancouver and arrived home soon after 6 p.m.

"This is a really splendid enterprise," said Mayor Percy Scurrell, speaking at the luncheon. "I believe it will become a recognized tour and I am sure it will benefit Nanaimo as well as Victoria."

JOINT EFFORT URGED
The mayor urged Vancouver Island tourist promoters to work with the mainland in attracting visitors to British Columbia.

"If we don't work together, we may as well forget about tourism on a big scale."

He said the Century 21 Exhibition in Seattle will bring millions of people to the west coast and B.C. should be able to attract most of them.

"They will then return to their homes and tell their friends that British Columbia offers something different. That is our great hope for the future."

All-Sooke 'Royalty' Show Friday

Sooke—A queen and two princesses to reign over the 25th annual All-Sooke Day celebration July 22 will be chosen here Friday night.

Selection will be made by draw during an amateur talent show at Sooke Community Hall.

Candidates, all Sooke district residents and ranging in age from 14 to 17 years, are Sherry Roberts, Lynda Sullivan, Sandra Jones, Marilyn Michelsen, Diane Zelenko, Vivienne Grunow, Dianne Soderberg, and Miki Owen.

The queen and her attendants will ride on the Victoria Day float in the Victoria Day parade in Victoria, and will present prizes for the logging sports at the annual midsummer show on Sooke River flats.

Sale of tickets in the queen contest is close to $800. Proceeds will pay for new lighting and other electrical installations in the recently-finished basement of the community hall.

PORT ALBERNI—Canvass of businessmen started today as the first part of the drive by the Civic Centre Association to raise $325,000 for an Alberni Valley Civic Centre.

Already about $15,000 has been donated.

Efforts now are being made to recruit 800 helpers for a house-to-house canvass to cover the whole of the valley.

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)
Danish farm leaders agreed Wednesday to end a two-day farmers' strike that has sent food prices skyrocketing and cut off most of the country's milk supplies. The government will give farmers 460,000 kroner (about $67,000, 000) in tax relief and other compensation.

Cuba Invasion Survivors Held 'Prisoner' by U.S.

Editor's Note: For 16 days during and after the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba, the Bay naval base. The following account sheds light on some intriguing problems in the disaster's aftermath.

By BEM PRICE
WASHINGTON (AP)
There is reason to believe that the United States is holding survivors of the Cuban invasion forces incommunicado—prisoners, if you will—on a Caribbean island.

There is also evidence that the U.S. troubles with communism in Central and South America are just beginning. The first rumor about the U.S.-held survivors of the invasion, some of whom were reported to be wounded, reached the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay soon after the military effort collapsed.

The grapevine there is so efficient that reports of activities in Havana, 600 miles west, sometimes reach the base before they are broadcast by the Castro regime.

TOLD OF ISLAND

Within hours after the grapevine report of U.S.-held survivors reached the base, the Castro captives from the abortive invasion—who were being interrogated in Havana on television—began talking of a particular island, Vieques.

They said they had been trained for the invasion at the U.S. marine base at Vieques, which is just a 30-minute helicopter ride from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Proposed tariff changes would give the revenue minister, the Liberals charged, "arbitrary powers" in defining customs status of imports and deny an appeal to his decisions.

Roebuck's major attack was aimed at the speech Tuesday night by the deputy government leader, Senator W. R. Brunt, who challenged the right of the Upper House to change any legislation passed by the elected representatives in the Commons.

Emphasizing the Senate had "just as great powers" as the Commons, Roebuck said that, if Brunt was correct, "we are all through" and the Conservative-appointed Senator "might as well pack his bags... because he has no further purpose to serve by remaining."

The right of the Senate to amend government bills "has never before been challenged in this or any other house," Roebuck declared. Brunt's interpretation would mean the upper chamber would be "hog-tied, hand and foot."

"Let us not hide behind any supposed lack of authority," he said.

New Cabinet Pledges Iran Reform

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—The new cabinet of Premier Ali Amini today announced a far-ranging program of land reform, economies and attacks on corruption in government.

The cabinet, after a two-hour extraordinary meeting, announced a 15-point program designed to stop abuses which caused recent strikes and demonstrations in Iran.

It pledged the government to: Limit land ownership and split up large estates. Rigidly limit expenditures in government departments. Further decentralize the government, granting greater provincial autonomy. Improve conditions of government employees, especially teachers.

Crack down hard on dishonesty in government.

Sentence Tuesday

Seaman Robert Alan Durs-ton will be sentenced in city police court Tuesday for molesting an 18-year-old Victoria girl on a dark street Friday.

The young naval rating pleaded guilty before Magistrate William Ostler Wednesday to the common assault of Carol McMillan, 18, of 1564 Rockland, who was accosted on her way home.

The court ordered a probation report before imposing sentence.

Farmers End Strike

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)
Danish farm leaders agreed Wednesday to end a two-day farmers' strike that has sent food prices skyrocketing and cut off most of the country's milk supplies. The government will give farmers 460,000 kroner (about $67,000, 000) in tax relief and other compensation.

While the rumor about the Vieques prisoners was seeping into Guantanamo, it was also circulating in San Juan and New York.

A U.S. Navy officer talked by radio to the naval station at San Juan, asking if newspaper men wanting to check on the rumor could be admitted to Vieques.

The answer was that no one would be admitted to the base without special permission from Washington.

On the assumption that training bases are normally open to visitors, efforts were made to gain access to Vieques through the Central Intelligence Agency and the White House.

The CIA was non-committal. A White House spokesman said it would not assist in the matter of entry.

Presumably the United States wants no one to talk to these survivors until the furor over the Cuban debacle—and the CIA's role in it—has died down.

While the Vieques operation was kept secret, the New York Times has reported the story of Dr. Rodolfo Nodal Tarafa, 27-year-old lawyer and member of the anti-Castro invasion forces.

Tarafa said he and 16 other volunteers had been held captive at gunpoint in Guatemala by CIA agents because they had refused to serve in the invasion forces under a man they described as a murderer in the regime of dictator Fulgencio Batista.

The Washington Post reported these men were arrested as mutineers.

More Police Power Looms

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—Justice Minister Francois Erasmus said Wednesday that strikes can be expected in South Africa and the government needs powers to deal with situations which might arise without having to declare a state of emergency.

He was replying in the House of Assembly to criticisms raised during the committee stage of the general law amendment bill which includes a clause empowering the attorney-general to order detention of arrested persons for up to 12 days to maintain public safety and law and order.

Erasmus said experience had shown that powers were needed to detain persons who, after having been arrested and released on bail, continued with activities for which they had originally been arrested.

WITHOUT CRAMPING ANYONE'S STYLE

The driving seat adjusts for height, leg-room and tilt. 72 different positions altogether. And the steering column adjusts, too. But custom-built comfort isn't the only surprising thing about the Triumph Herald. There's independent suspension on all 4 wheels. Once-a-year greasing. Plus the fact that heater, windshield washers, coat hooks and most other "extras" are included in the low, low price of $1926.

Roller Coaster Ride No Fun

By ERIK WATT
(Special to The Times)

ISACHSEN, N.W.T.—Any day the weather's good, the Decca navigation system is functioning properly and the "bird" in the air of CFJOK is working. Rene Bataille, Frank Smith and Jim Houlihan take off on the kind of ride a roller-coaster enthusiast would remember all his life.

JOK is a speedy and powerful twin-engine Aero Commander aircraft owned by Keating Aviation Ltd., attached to the Polar Continental Shelf Project and working out of Polar Base on Elief Ringnes Island. Most of her innards are taken up with electronic instruments; there's just enough room in the cabin for Smith, the pilot, Bataille, chief of the shelf project's magnetic survey party, and Houlihan, the technician.

Accurate Check

Once aloft, Frank Smith throttles back to 55 per cent power and heads for a predetermined location where Rene Bataille can get down to business. Jim Houlihan fiddles with the radio altimeter, which gives JOK's exact altitude above the surface, checks the movie camera which photographs the Decca dials and clock mounted on the cabin roof between Smith and Bataille, gives the panel which records the operation of the "bird"—a magnetometer—a final once over. (The camera keeps an accurate record of the time over a particular location.)

Bataille gives the word, and the wild ride of CFJOK has begun.

Inside Upsets

For perhaps the next six hours, JOK will stand on her tail, dive, stand on her tail, dive. If she happens to be crossing ice, confused stomachs get a momentary respite. But the moment she's over land once more it's back to the aerial rock 'n' roll.

There's a method—precise method—in this seeming madness. Frank Smith has to maintain a constant altitude of 1,000 feet above ground level if the readings JOK brings back are to be accurate. When a hill, or a cliff, or a mountain, looms up ahead, up goes JOK. When she passes the crest, down she goes again. It's as simple as that. . . . unless you happen to be Frank Smith, who must somehow keep one eye on the overhead Decca dials, so he's sure he's on course, and the other on the altimeter, which happens to be on the panel below . . . while flying the aircraft at the same time.

Six hours of this, Smith admits, can be tiring.

Aeromagnetic survey work—and magnetic work on the ground which complements it—is one phase of the shelf project . . . and, like most phases, linked with others.

The magnetic teams are attempting to determine the depth to the "basement," the impervious layer of rock above which oil pools are found; to pick up evidence of metallic deposits beneath the earth's surface; to define the extent of the polar basin which, scientists feel, is a potential oil basin to determine the magnetic field of the high Arctic (which could hold the answer to safe space flight, among other things), to draw a subterranean contour map of the Arctic islands and chart the depth of the submerged polar shelf which extends out into the seas around them.

Seismic crews, like the gravity observers, further refine the picture of the earth's subterranean structure, detonating charges of explosives at carefully-laid-out intervals. By measuring the time the sound takes to bounce back to recording instruments on the surface through the various layers of the earth's crust, they can tell where, and what, these layers are.

Answers Sought
On the ice, oceanographer Arthur Collin and his party are studying the waters of the high Arctic. They want to know if they are part of a world circulation, or "captive," the rate of flow of currents, the water temperature—and, if the future food needs of the world's exploding population cannot be met elsewhere, whether there are enough fish in the Arctic Ocean to support commercial fisheries.

Gravity Measured

A gravity survey, carried out by two observers, Dr. Jean Robert Weber and Larry Sozak, is closely tied in with the magnetometer work. Gravity meters will detect non-metallic minerals, like asbestos, and a gravity meter can give a far more accurate picture of an interesting area than JOK can ever hope to obtain, no matter how wildly she pitches to maintain the right height.

The gravity men, too, are accumulating enough geophysical measurements of the

Dogs Reliable

David Horne is in charge of inshore submarine geological work. His party boasts the project's two Eskimos—two cheerful souls named Andrew and Philipposie—and the only motive equipment which neither whiteout nor mechanical breakdown can halt—two teams of huskies.

Southwest of Isachsen, scientists from the Pacific Naval Laboratory in Esquimaux, and the Pacific oceanographic group of the fisheries research board are engaged in grimmer work. They're trying to determine the acoustic qualities of the ocean: finding out what special problems arise in the detection of enemy submarines operating in Arctic waters.

They're all too well aware of how close Hudson Bay is to the heart of Canadian and American industry—and that this is the age of the missile-carrying submarine.

Sea-Ice Probed

Before the summer is over, a party under William Black will have done more work on determining the characteristics of the sea ice itself; its thickness (where can icebreakers operate?), its rate of drift (indications are the polar ice can move 500 miles in a year in a clockwise pattern), its melting (ice climate changes coming up?) And glaciologist Keith Arnold's party may provide more data for weather forecasters, too.

There's one project which particularly stirs the admiration of Dr. Fred Roots, coordinator of the whole effort. That's the job done by Frank Hunt, chief of the topographical survey.

600-Mile Check

"Last year," says Fred Roots, "Frank ran a survey 600 miles long, from Isachsen southeast across Peary Channel to Amund Ringnes Island, north to Meighen Island, across the sea ice to the northern tip of Elief Ringnes and back to Isachsen."

"A lot of that work was done in 40-below weather. But when he closed his traverse and worked out his calculations he produced a survey you wouldn't expect to find done on the boundaries of a city."

"He took his readings at 10-mile intervals, and despite ice fog, and wind, and cold, he must have been less than two inches out on each one to get his angles right."

"A margin of error of one in 15,000 is acceptable for a city boundary survey. Frank's margin of error was about one in 86,000."

IDENTITY CARD PLAN FOR DOUKS REJECTED

A proposal to issue identity cards to Doukhobors who do not pay property taxes was coldly received Wednesday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"It has rather far reaching implications as far as our conception of civil liberties is concerned," said Mr. Bonner.

"The government does not propose to embark upon an indiscriminate policy of retaliation against any minority group within our jurisdiction," he added.

"Not one in a thousand members of the Sons of Freedom or the orthodox Doukhobors either has any knowledge of or in any way responsible for the recent deprivations."

'BEST SINGLE PICTURE'

Small Arctic Area Gets Intense Study

MONTREAL (CP)—A group of McGill University scientists leaves today for Axel Heiberg Island, in Canada's Arctic 2,000 miles north of Winnipeg, for the third year of work in a five-year exploration program.

Fifteen members of the Jacobsen-McGill expedition leave today. At full strength, there will be 26 men working on the island.

Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill, said the Axel Heiberg program will furnish what is probably the best single picture of an Arctic area ever prepared by man.

The expedition deliberately limits itself to one fairly small area at the base of two glaciers and intensively studies all aspects of the area. Expedition members include glaciologists, geologists, geophysicists, meteorologists and botanists.

The expedition is sponsored jointly by McGill and by Dr. George Jacobsen, president of an Arctic construction company.

This year the expedition plans to drill the world's most northerly hole, probably on nearby Ellesmere Island, Eureka, N.W.T.

The hole, to go down some 3,000 feet, is expected to yield geologic, temperature and permafrost information.

Weatherman Puts Blame On Weather

Heavy snows on the Olympic Mountains is not the cause of current cool weather here, weatherman William Mackie assured today.

"It is the result of this cold, wet, miserable, unseasonably, untimely, unprintable weather," he said. "We've been getting rain, and the high mountains have been getting snow."

He said the present weather system over Victoria is showing signs of weakening, and may give sunshine Friday with a few clouds, light winds, and temperatures up to 60 degrees.

"The outlook for the weekend is poor, though," he said. "Right now it looks like there will be more showers."

Landslide Kills 50 In Malaya

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—Fifty persons were believed killed today in a big landslide in the Cameron Highlands, a hillside resort 130 miles from here.

Twelve bodies have been recovered. The rubble buried six houses in a row, one report said. Another report by an eyewitness said two taxis filled with holidaymakers were caught in the path of the slide.

Hundreds of men working on a nearby hydro-electric dam site rushed to the scene to join in rescue operations.

Canada Set To Mediate Cuba Dispute

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today Canada is prepared to help mediate the dispute between the United States and Cuba.

He indicated in an interview that a cooling-off period would be necessary before such mediation could take place. Canada attempted a similar move last summer with Mexico and Brazil, but it got nowhere.

Green indicated Mexico and Brazil would participate with Canada in any renewed attempt at mediation.

The external affairs minister discussed the Cuban affair with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Oslo Tuesday.

RUSSIANS DISCOVER ROTATION PERIOD

Venus Discovery Made

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet scientists, announcing a major new discovery tonight, said that by bouncing radio waves off the planet Venus they had learned that its period of rotation could be estimated at about 10 earth days.

The news was front-paged tonight in the government newspaper Izvestia. The newspaper said it had been informed of the discovery by the Academy of Science which had made the experiment recently.

Another discovery was that different parts of the planet's surface reflected the radio waves in different ways.

The results of the experiment which took place when Venus was at its nearest approach, about 40,000,000 kilometres (25,000,000 miles) from earth, were still being studied.

Further information would be published in scientific magazines.

LAOTIAN PRINCE SHOT, PATHET LAO BLAMED

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—A top aide of deputy Premier Phoumi Novasane was assassinated early today as he drove in a car through the downtown area of Vientiane. Unconfirmed reports said the killing was staged by the Communist Pathet Lao.

The dead man was Maj. Chao Ekarat, a Laotian prince and nephew of neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Geneva Talks Ready on Laos

(Times News Services)

GENEVA — The Big Three Western powers were reported ready to take their seats in a big East-West conference about the future of Laos opening here Friday.

The decision apparently was based on word received in London today that organized fighting has ceased in the jungle kingdom.

This word was not official, but well-informed British sources reported the main fighting has died out. They noted that sporadic clashes continue and one said "these things will still have to be regularized."

There was no official confirmation from the United States, Britain and France that they had dropped earlier reservations to participating in the conference if a cease-fire was not certified.

But sources close to the Western delegations said that, in view of the London news from Laos, they probably would agree tonight to sit down at the conference table at the UN Palace of Nations Friday with their Eastern opposites.

GREEN ARRIVES

Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green arrived from Oslo today and said he hopes Laos can be cut off from outside pressure.

Green told reporters at the airport: "We hope the Laos conference will produce agreed arrangements which will enable an independent, unified and neutral Laos to live in peace with its neighbor and to resolve its internal disputes within the framework of political institutions, acceptable to all sections of the population."

He added: "We also hope that provision will be made at this conference to insulate Laos from outside pressures."

Truce Team Join Talks

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The three-nation truce supervisory commission moved into the negotiations between right-wing and leftist forces today in an attempt to bring about a formal cease-fire before the opening in Geneva Friday of an international conference on Laos.

The chiefs of the three delegations on the commission—Samar Sen of India, Leon Mayrand of Canada and Albert Morski of Poland—flew with the right-wing delegation today when it left here for fresh cease-fire talks with the communist-backed leftists.

The right-wing negotiators left shortly after Sen had reported "successful" preliminary talks with the leftist leaders Wednesday night in Xieng Khouang.

Hitler Aide Jailed As Red

INGOLDSTADT, West Germany (Reuters)—One of 28 alleged Communist agents arrested in West Germany earlier this week was identified today as Richard Scherger, one of Hitler's early supporters. Police said Scherger, who runs a nearby farm, was in custody here.

Ross Report Made Public

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Reorganization of B.C.'s mental health services, with a huge building program based on regional treatment, is proposed in the report of the American Psychiatric Association, made public today by the provincial government.

The report, 157 pages, was ordered by the B.C. government in November, 1958. Health Minister Eric Martin commented: "This government feels it is a good report and will serve as an invaluable guide to the future development of mental health services in B.C."

The report, submitted by Dr. Mathew Ross, head of the APA, places heavy emphasis on increasing facilities and staff.

administrative organization, but stresses that actual treatment of mental illness should be more on a community level. Key to its 50 recommendations is decentralization of treatment and rehabilitation rather than the virtual imprisonment of the mentally ill in isolated institutions.

B.C. Setup Not Bad But Inadequate

While it is critical of the present services in B.C., its criticism is chiefly that they are inadequate to meet needs, rather than that they are bad services.

Release of the report by Health Minister Eric Martin comes six weeks after one of B.C.'s most bitter political battles in which the Opposition prolonged the legislative session in unsuccessful efforts to find out what Dr. Ross recommended.

The report says that "people not bricks" are the heart of an effective mental health program, but it lists an expensive program of needed building.

It also challenges the government to take the chance to lead North America in setting up a model method of financing care of the mentally ill. A combination of provincial, federal, medical and private insurance assistance is suggested, although no specific method is proposed.

The report contains major recommendations for tougher treatment of criminals, a special drug addict treatment centre and a complete overhaul of what it calls "archaic" provincial laws regarding commitment of patients to mental hospitals.

Heading the big building program are three Vancouver Island projects — a 450-bed centre for the mentally retarded; an adult mental health clinic and a new 500-bed Victoria mental hospital, which has already been promised this year by Mr. Martin.

Better Pay, More Staff Vital

Better pay and more staff are vital to the entire program, says the Ross report. It is particularly critical of the lack of psychiatrists and psychologists outside the big metropolitan areas.

In putting mental health services more into the community level, the report suggests the province be divided into mental health districts to conform with the present 17 public health districts.

Each district should contain a mental health planning and advisory board composed of lay and professional officials and headed by an experienced psychiatrist.

Administration of the provincial mental health branch would be widened to include two subdivisions — hospital services and community services.

Each community should be encouraged to set up a welfare council to work closely with provincial officials.

Communities, says the report, should receive provincial aid on a matching fund basis to expand their facilities.

There should be much greater emphasis on rehabilitation, says the report. An after-care program for persons released from hospitals should be routine, it says, and could be conducted by public health nurses.

Because mental care is not included in hospital insurance, patients committed to hospitals at present are treated implicitly as paupers in custody rather than sick individuals in need of treatment, says the report.

It suggests that reorganization of the provincial budget could provide hospital insurance coverage for 90 days and much-needed funds for staff salary increases.

In dealing with criminals, the report suggests a special government division of legal medicine including psychiatric staff at all jails. It also proposes a law requiring all persons indicted of a capital offence or previously indicted of a felony to be examined by two psychiatrists.

A new drug addiction treatment centre should be built at Essondale with a law passed allowing judges to commit offenders to the unit. It would be up to medical staff there to decide how long the addict remained in custody.

While it does not recommend a specific alcoholism treatment centre, the report urges "some other type of facility" for alcoholics in jails and urges treatment for alcoholics at community centres.

'End Geneva Stalling'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican congressional leadership called on President Kennedy today to end the "monumental stall" at Geneva by fixing a deadline for Russian agreement to a ban on nuclear weapons testing.

CPR Seamen Protest Flagship Conditions

LONDON (CP)—The Empress of Canada, new Canadian Pacific flagship, may sail into troubled waters Friday when she steams into Liverpool to complete her maiden voyage.

The unofficial National Seamen's Reform Movement said Wednesday it had received a number of complaints from seamen on board that accommodation for crew members is "inadequate and overcrowded."

Pat Neary, the movement's chief, said the complaints had been received by airmail from Montreal.

"If the ship is not to our satisfaction before she is due to sail next Tuesday we will call the men off for 24 hours and delay her sailing."

Capt. R. V. Burns, Canadian Pacific general manager, said he had received no complaints. The accommodation, he added, was as good as that in any other ship in the fleet.

SPY TRIALS POST MORTEM

Mac Orders Security Probe

LONDON (Reuters)—The government has decided on a fresh review of security procedure in Britain, Prime Minister Macmillan announced today.

He made the announcement in the House of Commons in the wake of a 42-year prison term given last week to Soviet spy George Blake.

The review, he said, would be made of security procedures and practices currently in force throughout the public service.

It would be undertaken by a body of independent persons of high standing.

Blake, a British foreign office employee, was alleged to have wrecked much of Britain's cold war effort in the 1950s by giving information to the Russians.

The new review will be in addition to that of a committee already appointed to investigate any possible security failures. This investigation was prompted by the conviction of five spies earlier this year for passing British naval secrets to Russia.

The findings of the earlier committee, under the chairmanship of Sir Charles Roper, will be made available to the new committee, which will report to Macmillan. The prime minister said he could not say whether the report would be published in whole or in part.

The prime minister's House of Commons announcement followed closed-door talks Wednesday with four top Opposition Labor leaders, all members of the Privy Council.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskill headed the Opposition team, whose oaths as privy councillors bind them to secrecy.

"Th' cease-fire seems t' be goin' right ahead in Laos 'cept fer a little shootin'."

Big thing about Victoria's weekend weather is whether ...

They're sayin' th' Russians held on t' Gagarin's wife an' child t' ensure th' he'd come back.

Renfrew Needs Breakwater

sible, George Hahn, Social Credit candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election, told a meeting at Port Renfrew Wednesday night.

The breakwater is needed for the protection of fishermen seeking shelter in Port Renfrew," he said. "They have no such protection now."

Mr. Hahn said the federal government is responsible for the development of industry at Port Renfrew. The breakwater would assist development of the Noranda Mine and enable it to ship concentrates to Japan.

Building of the breakwater, with wharfage facilities, and the construction of a road from Noranda Mines to the wharf would give immediate employment to the people of Port Renfrew and Vancouver Island.

"Operation... of the mine would employ about 75 men on a year-round basis," Mr. Hahn said.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston spoke in support of Mr. Hahn.

Aged naturally in the traditional manner... to assure Old Style flavour!

Old Style AGE

slower brewing is an Old Style tradition

Old Style is calmly brewed, with no concern for time. Faithful to our original recipe, carefully selected barley, hops and yeast are blended, brewed and, finally, put away to mature slowly in quiet ageing cellars. Brewed in this traditionally unhurried manner, Old Style's brilliant colour, fine flavour, and mellow taste mature naturally. Slower brewing is the reason so many people prefer Old Style.

$14.38 FLIGHT PAY FOR U.S. ASTRONAUT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cmdr. Alan Shepard carried an extra $14.38 for riding a rocket into space last Friday.

Here's how the navy explained this Wednesday:

As a commander on flying duty, Shepard is entitled to an extra $230 a month. He has to fly four hours a month for it.

His space voyage—302 miles down the Atlantic from Cape Canaveral, Fla.—took 15 minutes. Thus, he earned 1.16th of his flight pay for May, or $14.38.

Shepard gets no special compensation for serving as an astronaut. In a sense, he flew so fast Friday it cost him money.

Tories Desperate Hamilton Charges

The federal government is "buying" votes in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election with all kinds of extravagant promises, New Party candidate Glen Hamilton told a meeting in Metchosin Community Hall Thursday night.

"If we could only keep the by-election going continually, this would be a prosperous area," he joked.

"In the bad old days politicians used to buy our votes with $5 bills. This government goes beyond such penny-ante stuff—they have thrown everything into the pot but the Bank of Canada in a desperate bid to win this election."

Mr. Hamilton said the government should redeem the promises it made in 1957 before offering more election bait.

Mr. Diefenbaker said as long as he was prime minister no Canadian would suffer from unemployment. Let him keep that promise before all others.

NO EXCUSE POSSIBLE
"His government was given a clear mandate from the people and in the past four years it has had every chance to carry out its promises."

Mr. Hamilton said the development of nuclear weapons is a moral as well as a political and economic issue.

"We are spending $35. on weapons for every dollar we spend on aid to under-developed countries. We must redress the balance or reap the consequences."

"The new role for our armed forces is for them to become part of a specially-trained international police force under control of the United Nations."

Mr. Hamilton said Canada should take the lead in building collective security through the world community of the UN.

CCF leader Robert Strachan spoke of the "second-class status" of B.C. civil servants and said the New Party would guarantee collective bargaining and the right of civil servants to participate in ordinary political life "without fear of losing their jobs."

Cholera Kills 123
CALCUTTA (UPI) — A spreading cholera outbreak of near-epidemic proportions has taken 123 lives here in the past three weeks, health authorities said today.

Tumor Growth Slowed

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia cancer specialist Nikolai Blokhin said Wednesday Soviet scientists have achieved 95 per cent success in treating skin cancer. According to the Soviet news agency Tass, he said they had discovered chemical means to slow down the development of malignant tumors, though he did not expect a universal cure for all cancers.

FERRY CHIEF'S VIEW

Canadians Abroad Enjoy High Esteem

Canadians enjoy a reputation abroad which they never earned in this generation, B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous said Wednesday.

He spoke briefly to Victoria Chinatown Lions Club on the subject, "Opportunities and Responsibility of Citizenship."

The "dollar diplomacy" practiced abroad by North Americans is generally undermining the respect which many countries have felt for Canada, he warned.

Canadians today are too eager to ask for social legislation, a squandering of their birthright, he said.

"We must return to a Canada of principles—not dollars. We must fight for our freedoms, not give them away inch by inch by asking for more and more social legislation."

Mr. Aldous said he writhed with shame for Canadians who consider newcomers "darned foreigners."

The freedoms upon which Canada was built and a desire to become Canadians are the things which attract people from other countries to this one, he said.

$3,793 for Conscience

QUEBEC (CP) — Honore Pelletier, 55-year-old farmer from St. Pacome, Que., said Wednesday he was paid $3,793 for writing a statement saying he was switching political allegiance during last summer's provincial election campaign.

He told a royal commission inquiry into the former Union Nationale administration he negotiated the deal to find out whether it was really true the party "bought off" consciences.

Mr. Pelletier said the switch was from the Liberal party to the Union Nationale administration. Later, he said, he called on the Quebec Liberal organization in Quebec City and told them the full story.

Earlier, Hubert Ducharme, 46-year-old son of Romulus Ducharme (UN—Lavolette) told the commission he operated two firms which sold equipment to the provincial government between 1955 and 1960 and collected sales commissions.

Mr. Ducharme said he could not remember how much his firms collected in commissions or how much equipment was sold. The commission is to question the firms' accountant soon for details.

The royal commission, appointed last October, is inquiring into the activities of the Union Nationale government between July 1, 1955, and July 1, 1960—the last five years of a 16-year administration.

Present sittings of the commission have been adjourned until next Tuesday.

Who's Your Choice?

GEORGINA NOELS

The new "Miss Victoria" will be chosen May 20, the last day of Victoria Joyce fair. To enable readers to make their own choice, the Times is presenting two of the 10 finalists daily. Here is the next pair.

By HAL JONES

One of the youngest hopefuls is Nina Holden, 845 Selkirk, a 17-year-old student at Victoria High School.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, she came to Canada with her parents in 1950 and lived in Ontario for eight years before moving to Victoria.

With a bonnie Scots heritage, Nina enjoys life with a capital "L" taking part in numerous school activities.

She is a fanatical swimmer but ruefully recalls the day she lost her relay team a race without anybody swimming a stroke. "A strap on my swim suit snapped," she explained.

She wants to be a stenographer.

Nine will appear before the judges next Friday in the talent part of the contest. She will sing.

Also singing for the judges—this time on Wednesday—will be Georgina Noels.

Georgina hails from Saskatchewan, coming here first for a year in 1948 and then permanently in 1951. She lives with her parents and four younger sisters at 1791 Keith Place.

NINA HOLDEN... with 'budgie' friend.

A graduate of Mount Douglas High School she works as a stenographer. Spare time activities include watching hockey and playing basketball.

Don't be fooled by Georgina's "outdoor look." She likes walks but that's as far as it goes. Camping and such things are definitely out.

"I hate bugs," she says.

WHAT TO DO?

Old Queen's Portrait A Problem

An heirloom is causing Sooke School Board no end of worry.

It is a picture of Queen Victoria measuring six by five feet, and in a massive gilt frame. At present it is hanging in the original Metchoshin School, now being used as a Scout Hall, and deterioration is continuous.

Because of its history, however, the board is reluctant to dispose of it, and through its regular newsletter has asked for suggestions regarding restoration and housing of the picture.

The person responsible for the picture being in the old school is Mrs. Anne Trotter, 1506 McRae.

WON WITH ESSAY

In 1899, when she was 12 years old and a student at the school, she won for herself, in a district-wide essay and speaking competition, a book entitled "Life of Napoleon."

But for the school she won the imposing picture of Queen Victoria, which was donated and presented by W. H. Hayward, Sooke MLA and at that time Speaker of the House.

Rocky Point School won the picture the following year, but because of lack of space it remained at Metchoshin. When Mr. Hayward died the competition was discontinued.

"The years have taken their toll of the ancient prize," the board wrote. "A few pot shots by disrespectful small fry, gradual disintegration of the frame, plus the grime of years, now mar its original imposing appearance."

Mrs. Trotter and her family recently inspected the picture at the Scout Hall. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Duke of Albert Head.

FUND GROWING

Mother's Day Gift Going To Sally Ann

"Sally Ann" has long been a mother to the motherless and at least one Victoria couple has decided it should have a Mother's Day gift.

A spokesman for the Salvation Army's Red Shield and Matson Sunset Lodge campaign said fund workers were touched by an old man who walked into the office on Pandora Avenue.

Noting that Sunday is Mother's Day, "he gave us $5 which he said he had been saving for his wife for a gift. His wife said, 'We don't need anything. Give it to the Salvation Army's old folks' home.'"

Such response to the $245,000 campaign has been typical of the "little people" of the community, the spokesman said.

NO DOOR-KNOCKING

There is no house-to-house canvass in connection with the campaign. Instead, contact with Greater Victoria citizens is being made, "with generous response," through letters and the telephone.

Substantial industrial backing has helped to push the total to date well over $65,000.

Residences, Church for Gordon Head

A new church and residential development for the Gordon Head area on an 11.74-acre tract acquired by St. Chad's Anglican Church was announced today by Rev. H. Gordon Walker, St. Chad's rector.

Still in the initial planning stages the project is seen as providing a two-acre site on the highest ground in the area for a strikingly modern church, with the balance of the property being subdivided into about 25 large lots.

The property, on the east side of Shelbourne Street north of Torquay Drive, near Mt. Douglas Park, was acquired for $16,000 and the deal was handled for the church by R. H. Smith of Morey and Johnstone Ltd.

Mr. Walker said that the contemplated church building would seat between 300 and 400 people and would be built at an estimated cost of $150,000.

FAMILY AREA

"We want it to be a real landmark," he said, "and we expect to have something imaginative in design, something that will express the needs of the times. It will be a structure which directs people to ward God and also says to them, 'He is here.'"

The subdivision, he said, would be a "really outstanding family area" with large lots and playground area.

St. Chad's will open a fund-raising drive this fall which is expected to carry on over the next three years. By spring the church hopes to engage an architect to design the church and shortly after, perhaps with a loan from the diocese, to commence building.

Subdivision of the residential area is expected to take place this year and the profits from this will go to the church building fund.

B.C. Demands Specific Plan For Garibaldi

The B.C. government does not want to turn over Garibaldi Park to the federal government "unless it comes forward with a specific plan of development," Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said here today.

Mr. Westwood was commenting on a statement in the Ottawa House of Commons by Resources Minister Dinsdale that the federal government has received "no reply" to its offer of two years ago to take over Garibaldi Park.

NO COMMITMENT

Mr. Westwood said the federal government, in offering to take over the park, had given "no indication" how it would develop the park or what money would be spent on it.

Mr. Dinsdale said established policy demands that the provincial government make the approach to have the land designated as a national park, and must provide the land "free of all encumbrances."

"That is not good enough," Mr. Westwood said. "We are developing the park ourselves as rapidly as money will permit because we realize it is a tremendous asset to the people of the lower mainland."

"Unless the federal government comes forward with a specific plan, we don't feel we should hand over Garibaldi Park."

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. Prof. C. S. Burchill, "Some Cracks in the Iron Curtain."

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

A crazy afternoon... From a tourist luncheon at the Empress Hotel, I dashed around to Silver Threads to play them a few of my oldest records—those of Caruso, Grace Fields, Paul Whiteman and the Westminster Abbey Choir.

Then back to the Empress to interview Liberal MP Paul Hellyer in one of the downstairs reception rooms... Blundered into a life insurance meeting by mistake and was greeted enthusiastically as Mr. So-and-So from Toronto.

Found Mr. Hellyer next door with radio and TV men. He said the national Liberal Party had taken on a "new lease of life," but the effect was spoiled by a life insurance man the other side of the wall. In loud clear tones he was heard to say:

"This is what happens after death..."

Not surprised so many Times readers objected to that description of George Bernard Shaw in the advertisement announcing the new movie The Millionaire.

Over the shapely outline of Sophia Loren in black undies were the words:

"From the wicked worldly George Bernard Shaw."

Really!

The Silver Threads were appreciative of a record made by Caruso way back in 1918—the only song he ever sang in English.

This was George Cohan's composition Over There and Caruso sang it in aid of the U.S. War Bond campaign.

Another oldie which came in for lots of laughter was the one-man opera performed years ago by blind pianist Alice Templeton.

He sang all the parts—tenor, bass, baritone, soprano and contralto—and still managed to save enough breath for a hilarious impersonation of the radio commentator.

Wanted—A Cockney comedian.

Jerry Gosley needs one for the 1961 edition of his summer Smile Show opening at the Langham Court Theatre July 19. The rest of the cast is complete, with Jerry and Margaret Thomson again taking the lead roles.

The first night in aid of the Salvation Army's Matson Sunset Lodge will be attended by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes.

Forty-eight residents of Long Beach, California, have booked seats for the second night.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

All is in readiness for 1,500 Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs to put their beach cleanup good turn into action on Saturday morning on the beaches of Southern Vancouver Island.

Under the direction of their leaders, the scouts and cubs will comb the beaches from Deep Cove to Jordan River to clear them of glass and any other objects which might be dangerous to swimmers during the coming summer.

Two boys, one from Victoria, the other from View Royal, were sentenced in Colwood juvenile court Wednesday for possession of stolen property. The first was sent to Brannen Lake for an indefinite term and the second was put on probation.

A Saanich youth was fined $10 in the same court for being in possession of liquor.

Keith Ford, of Victoria, will be sentenced Friday for theft of motor and running gear from a moored boat in the Inner Harbor last fall.

He pleaded guilty in city police court Wednesday to taking motor, controls, battery and gasoline tank from a craft owned by Gordon Bransen, at property adjoining 39 Songhees Road. Value was estimated at $140.

A total of 20 pennies and about $6 in stamps was taken from the ransacked office of King's Auto Repairs, 2504 Government, overnight.

City police said entry was made through a jimmied window and office drawers had been ransacked as well as the cash register.

W. C. Ozard, former teacher at Tillicum School, will be master of ceremonies at a reunion of teachers and students of the school from 1916 to 1941 which will be held at the school on May 19 at 8 p.m.

Showing of a travel film and election of officers for the coming season will be on the agenda for the monthly meeting of the McKenzie Avenue Parent-Teacher Association on Monday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. This will be the last meeting of the year.

Seven-year-old Bruce Smith, 2007 Kendall, is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today with head cuts and a broken wrist suffered in a tumble from porch to sidewalk Wednesday night.

Oak Bay police took the boy by ambulance at 7:15 p.m. He had been playing on the porch at home when he lost his balance and fell about 15 feet.

Mayor Percy Scourrah Wednesday said $100,000 is the target for the city's centennial celebrations fund.

The city already has allocated $25,000 and will give more next year but other civic municipalities, the provincial government and business firms are expected to contribute to the fund.

About 30 students from Mount View High School today were seeing civic government in action by attending the city council meeting.

The case of Mrs. Beryl Ann Fisher, charged with conspiracy to commit perjury, was remanded until Tuesday in city police court today for formal commitment to a higher court.

The charge centred around a trial held in March in city police court when a charge of assault laid by W. A. Scott, 1421 Broad, against Sander Domokos, 670 Battersea, was dismissed.

Last general meeting of the season will be held by Monterey School Parent-Teacher Association in the school auditorium next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Entertainment will be supplied by students who participated in the recent Music Festival.

Mrs. R. B. Restall, president of the Quadra School PTA will give a brief report on the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation convention held recently, and officers for the coming year will be elected.

HMCS Grilse Friendship Symbol

Canadian Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny said today that "the need for a naval force capable of ensuring the freedom of the seas is greater than it has ever been before."

He was speaking at Grotton, Connecticut at a ceremony when he formally accepted for Canada the former U.S. submarine Burrish which was christened HMCS Grilse by Mrs. Sevigny. Grilse will be stationed at Esquimalt and is due here in mid-July.

Mr. Sevigny said, "With the Soviet and satellite navies gaining in strength and destructive potential, the threat to the security of the seas has assumed greater and more menacing proportions."

Mr. Sevigny said Canada's navy has undertaken within NATO "to specialize in anti-submarine warfare."

Grilse will help Canadian ships and aircraft "sharpen their ability to find, track and sink submarines."

FRIENDSHIP PROVED

Mr. Sevigny said the ceremony was "one of the more visible demonstrations" of the friendship existing between Canada and the U.S.

"Nowhere has this goodwill and co-operative effort been more apparent than in the association between the navies of the United States and Canada."

Grilse, on loan to Canada for five years, is now manned by a 70-man crew from Esquimalt, commanded by Lieut.-Cmdr. Edmund G. Gigg. They have been training at the U.S. base since late January.

Grilse is the first submarine since the German U-190 to become part of the RCN fleet. That was in 1945.

The navy is hoping that the government will soon decide to have submarines built in Canada. It says it could use at least 12 to exercise the destroyer fleet.

The RCN's first submarines were the CC-1 and CC-2, purchased on the authority of the premier of British Columbia when this province, at the outset of the First World War, was in a state of alarm.

BOUGHT SUBS

The two boats were built in Seattle, Wash., for the Chilean Navy. Chile got behind in the payments and the builders peddled them at a higher price. The submarines were delivered at a sea rendezvous where a $1,150,000 Province of British Columbia cheque was turned over on the spot as full payment.

So secret was this operation that the two vessels were nearly fired on by shore batteries when they entered harbor at Esquimalt.

The CC-1 and CC-2 patrolled the West Coast for three years and their well-advertised presence may have deterred the Germans from raiding B.C. waters.

During the First World War, 24 submarines were built in Canada for Britain, Italy and Russia. Ten more were built in the U.S. for Britain, and after the war two of them, the CH-14 and CH-15, were given to Canada.

Retrenchment followed the war and the RCN had to give up these two submarines in 1922.

The navy didn't get another submarine until after the defeat of Nazi Germany in 1945. Two enemy subs, the U-689 and U-190, surrendered to Canadian ships at sea.

The Grilse is the first RCN sub since then.

However, the sixth submarine squadron of the Royal Navy has been based on Halifax since 1954 with two or three boats to exercise the Canadian fleet.

These submarines are partly manned by Canadians but remain part of the RN.

ASK The TIMES

Q. I would like to know when, where and from what Al Capone died. J.C.

A. Gangster Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone died of paresis (syphilis) in Miami, Fla., Jan. 1947, aged 48.

Q. Would you kindly tell me the approximate value of a small sapphire compared to a diamond of similar size? A.C.

A. A fine quality sapphire is about the same price as a diamond.

CONFUSION CLEARED UP

City Wax Museum Not Mm. Tussaud's

Victoria's Royal London Wax Museum has no connection with Madame Tussaud's waxworks in London, managing director John Steele said today.

The Victoria waxworks were moulded by the firm of Josephine Tussaud and Co. in London. But, oddly enough, Josephine Tussauds have absolutely nothing to do with Madame Tussauds.

"Madam Tussauds make waxworks for use in their own museum only," Mr. Steele said. "Josephine Tussauds produce them for other museums, including our own and the museum at Niagara Falls."

Mr. Steele said he wished to clear up a misunderstanding which has arisen because both firms bear the same name.

"We have never claimed any connection with Madame Tussaud's London exhibition. All our advertisements state that our figures were specially made for us by Josephine Tussauds. However, this has led to some confusion."

Mr. Steele could not say why the two firms operate independently, since the operators of both are descendants of the original Madame Tussaud.

Josephine Tussaud is an elderly woman who still heads the firm which bears her name, but she is not actually engaged in moulding the waxwork figures it produces.

More than 2,500 men, women and children visited the Victoria museum over the weekend.

Mayor Percy Scourrah today made an urgent appeal to Victorians to stand up and be counted in the federal census.

Those who don't will cost the taxpayers $32.50.

"I hope everyone will make sure they are counted in the census that begins June 1, especially our Chinese friends," said the mayor.

He pointed out nobody had to fear giving the requested information to census takers "because they are sworn to secrecy and face fines for breaking confidence."

"Victoria loses money for every person who lives here but is not counted in the census because our provincial per capita grant is based on population," the mayor pointed out.

Present grant totals $475,796.

Loss to the city for every uncounted head is $6.50 annually until the next census is taken five years from now.

WITH ONLY A FEW MORE WEEKS to completion date, work is speeding ahead on the new $400,000 sports centre at Esquimalt. Workmen today were busy pouring in the concrete floor of the main arena. The floor of the adjoining curling rink has already been finished. Major part of the project—being carried out by Farmer Construction—is expected to be finished June 1. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Miss Smith, who recently spent a two-week holiday in Cuba, praised the Castro government during a speech to the Calgary chapter of the Knights of the Round Table. She said she is not sure whether the comments or the publicity they received were responsible for the dismissal. J. J. Simpson, manager of the company, made no comment.

Cuba Dispute

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today Canada is prepared to help mediate the dispute between the United States and Cuba.

He indicated in an interview that a cooling-off period would be necessary before such mediation could take place. Canada attempted a similar move last summer with Mexico and Brazil, but it got nowhere. Green indicated Mexico and Brazil would participate with Canada in any renewed attempt at mediation.

The external affairs minister discussed the Cuban affair with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Oslo Tuesday.

Laos Talks
Ready

(Times News Services)

GENEVA — The Big Three Western powers were reported ready to take their seats in a big East-West conference about the future of Laos opening here Friday.

The decision apparently was based on word received in London today that organized fighting has ceased in the jungle kingdom. This word was not official, but well-informed British sources reported the main fighting has died out. They noted that sporadic clashes continue and one said "these things will still have to be regularized."

There was no official confirmation from the United States, Britain and France that they had dropped earlier reservations to participating in the conference if a cease-fire was not certified.

But sources close to the Western delegations said that, in view of the London news from Laos, they probably would agree tonight to sit down at the conference table at the UN Palace of Nations Friday with their Eastern opposites.

GREEN ARRIVES

Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green arrived from Oslo today and said he hopes Laos can be cut off from outside pressure.

Green told reporters at the airport: "We hope the Laos conference will produce agreed arrangements which will enable an independent, unified and neutral Laos to live in peace with its neighbor and to resolve its internal disputes within the framework of political institutions, acceptable to all sections of the population."

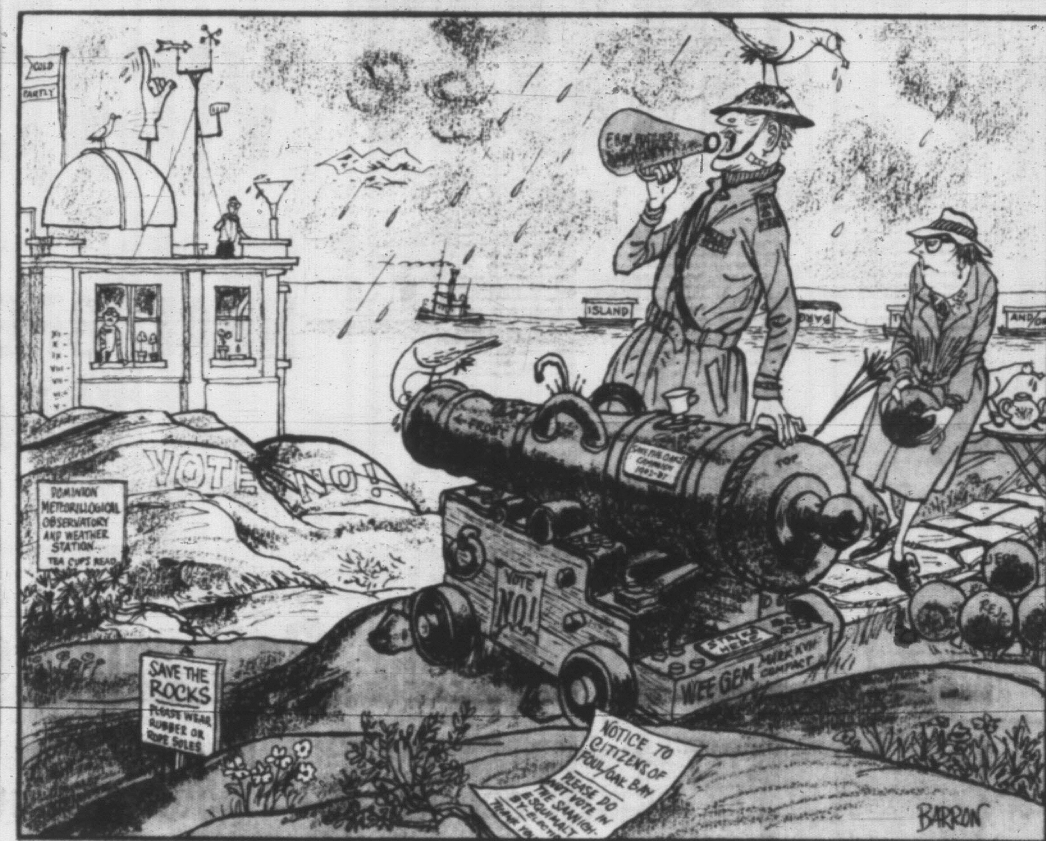

He added: "We also hope that provision will be made at this conference to insulate Laos from outside pressures."

Truce Team
Join Talks

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The three-nation truce supervisory commission moved into the negotiations between right-wing and leftist forces today in an attempt to bring about a formal cease-fire before the opening in Geneva Friday of an international conference on Laos.

The chiefs of the three delegations on the commission—Samar Sen of India, Leon Mayrand of Canada and Albert Morski of Poland—flew with the right-wing delegation today when it left here for fresh cease-fire talks with the communist-backed leftists.

Further information would be published in scientific magazines.

Hitler Aide
Jailed As Red

INGOLDSTADT, West Germany (Reuters)—One of 28 alleged Communist agents arrested in West Germany earlier this week was identified today as Richard Scheringer, one of Hitler's early supporters. Police said Scheringer, who runs a nearby farm, was in custody here.

Weatherman
Puts Blame
On Weather

Heavy snows on the Olympic Mountains is not the cause of current cool weather here, weatherman William Mackle assured today.

"It is the result of this cold, wet, miserable, unseasonably, untimely, unprintable weather," he said. "We've been getting rain, and the high mountains have been getting snow."

He said the present weather system over Victoria is showing signs of weakening, and may give sunshine Friday with a few clouds, light winds, and temperatures up to 60 degrees.

The outlook for the weekend is poor, though, he said. "Right now it looks like there will be more showers."

SPY TRIALS POST MORTEM

Mac Orders Security Probe

LONDON (Reuters)—The government has decided on a fresh review of security procedures in Britain, Prime Minister Macmillan announced today.

He made the announcement in the House of Commons in the wake of a 42-year prison term given last week to Soviet spy George Blake.

The review, he said, would be made of security procedures and practices currently in force throughout the public service.

It would be undertaken by

Huge Building
Plan Proposed
In Ross Report

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Reorganization of B.C.'s mental health services, with a huge building program based on regional treatment, is proposed in the report of the American Psychiatric Association, made public today by the provincial government.

The report, 137 pages, was ordered by the B.C. government in November, 1958.

Health Minister Eric Martin commented: "This government feels it is a good report and will serve as an invaluable guide to the future development of mental health services in B.C."

The report, submitted by Dr. Mathew Ross, head of the APA, places heavy emphasis on increasing facilities and staff.

It urges a strong provincial administrative organization, but stresses that actual treatment of mental illness should be more on a community level.

Key to its 50 recommendations is decentralization of treatment and rehabilitation rather than the virtual imprisonment of the mentally ill in isolated institutions.

B.C. Setup Not Bad But Inadequate

While it is critical of the present services in B.C., its criticism is chiefly that they are inadequate to meet needs, rather than that they are bad services.

Release of the report by Health Minister Eric Martin comes six weeks after one of B.C.'s most bitter political battles in which the Opposition prolonged the legislative session in unsuccessful efforts to find out what Dr. Ross recommended.

The report says that "people not bricks" are the heart of an effective mental health program, but it lists an expensive program of needed building.

It also challenges the government to take the chance to lead North America in setting up a model method of financing care of the mentally ill. A combination of provincial, federal, medical and private insurance assistance is suggested, although no specific method is proposed.

The report contains major recommendations for tougher treatment of criminals, a special drug addict treatment centre and a complete overhaul of what it calls "archaic" provincial laws regarding commitment of patients to mental hospitals.

Heading the big building program are three Vancouver Island projects—a 450-bed centre for the mentally retarded, an adult mental health clinic and a new 500-bed Victoria mental hospital, which has already been promised this year by Mr. Martin.

Better pay and more staff are vital to the entire program, says the Ross report. It is particularly critical of the lack of psychiatrists and psychologists outside the big metropolitan areas.

In putting mental health services more into the community level, the report suggests the province be divided into mental health districts to conform with the present 17 public health districts.

Each district should contain a mental health planning and advisory board composed of lay and professional officials and

CPR Seamen Protest
Flagship Conditions

LONDON (CP)—The Emphasis of Canada, new Canadian Pacific flagship, may sail into troubled waters Friday when she steams into Liverpool to start her maiden voyage.

The unofficial National Seamen's Reform Movement said Wednesday it had received a number of complaints from seamen on board that accommodation for crew members is "inadequate and overcrowded."

Pat Neary, the movement's chief, said the complaints had been received by airmail from Montreal.

The ship is not to our satisfaction before she is due to sail next Tuesday we will call the men off for 24 hours and delay her sailing."

Capt. R. V. Burns, Canadian Pacific general manager, said he had received no complaints. The accommodation, he added, was as good as that in any other ship in the fleet.
